Grave Misgivings Felt as to Germany's Effective Acceptance of Plan

PARIS, May 7—The French Prime Minister, Raymond Poincaré, has again made an important discourse, defining his position on the eve of the elec-tions. He repeated that France had accepted in good grace and quite spontaneously the experts' conclusions as adopted by the Reparation Commission. The economic unity of the Reich would be restored when Germany had put into execution the program estab-lished by the Commission. Mr. Poinor after Germany had begun its execu-tion. But M. METHODISTS AGAIN UNITED AFTER 80 YEARS' SEPARATION

Unification of Church in the North and South Voted at Springfield Meeting

Report of Special Joint Commission Is Adopted by a Vote of 802 to 13

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 7 (Special)—"Methodism is united, we are not divided, all one army we," sang 4000 voices this morning at the Municipal Auditorium when by a vote of 802 against 13 the report of the joint commission on unification was adopted by the Methodist General Conference and reunion with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, from which the northern body split 80 years ago, because of a controversy over slavery, became a reality.

Joy was unbounded. Tears streamed from the eyes of the delegates. The victory for progress was more com-plete than anyone had dreamed. The next step to complete unification will be to call a general conference of the Methodist Church, South. Bishops in Methodist Church, South. Bishops in Nashville are waiting to do this. The plan will go through this conference almost unanimously. Any real oppo-sition would have been here.

The report of the commission, which is composed of 25 representatives of each of the churches involved, was adopted March 27-29, 1923 at a meeting at St. Louis. Of the 23 southern delegates present, 20 were favorable to the plan. All of the northern del-sion on unification, argued for the plan after it had been read. The fervor of his address broke down any opposition that might have been in the air. At the close, a Negro, the Rev. W. A. C. Hughes of Philadelphia, came to the platform and said: "I count myself happy, as one of that group around which the discussion centered in 1844, to second that

The Rev. Charles A. Tindley of Calvary Church, Philadelphia (Negro), reputed to be the greatest orator of the race, mounted the platform and said: "In the interests of this great move-ment, the 350,000 members of the Methodist Episcopal Church of my race say 'yes.'" It had been expected that objection would come from the Negro delegates. Only one of the 13 nays was from a Negro.

nays was from a Negro.

James D. Black of Barbourville, Ky., former Governor of the State, said, "I consider myself fortunate to be able to vote on this great question." Others spoke and scores clamored for the floor, but hundreds more cried
"vote, vote." The previous question "vote, vote." The previous question carried. The motion was put. It was a count vote. Every one rose it seemed. Eight hundred and two, the tellers announced as favorable. The negative were called. Heads turned.

Thirteen stood. Bishop McDowell said:

We should not allow ourselves to be hindered by any technicalities. The commission was released from any binding instructions. We were not charged to find reasons against union. We were charged to find a way to union.

We made a simple proposition. It was explained; we separated. The southern delegates spent an afternoon with it. They came back with a counter proposition. We discovered that we were trying to say the same thing. The next meeting was held at that we were trying to say the same thing. The next meeting was held at St. Louis in March, 1923.

The task of making a Christian sentiment—a Protestant sentiment is not to be accomplished by divided strength. We must begin to live together as we are, with the minimum of change to start with. The old probeing of protecting the minority is in this plan taken care of.

I ask you to observe that the powers granted to the general conference in this plan make it a real body, and not merely a nominal one. If I were a Methodist in China I would not wish to choose one denomination or the other on an issue that I know nothing about. To remove this distinction for the effect upon the non-Christian world will alone justify its adoption.

I have had through all the years adoption.

I have had through all the years I have had through all the years of my ministry a feeling that I could not shake off that I would see these churches together and that I might have the privilege of doing something to bring them together. It is the afternoon of life for me. It is the morning of the united church.

Appeal Is Applauded

The bishop sat down while the audience rose and tremendously applauded his appeal. It seemed that there could be no one who would attempt to stem the rolling tide of unification.

The plan of unification is here sum marized:

We, the Commissions of Unification holding that these two churches are essentially one church—one in origin, in belief, in spirit, in purpose and polity—and desiring that this essential unity may be made actual in organization and administration throughout the world, do propose its adoption by the two churches by the processes which they respectively require:

A comprehensive plan for doing this would have the double-effect of making war less probable, and make the Nation more impregnable in the event of a conflict.

less probable, and make the Nation more impregnable in the event of a conflict.

The proposition is a big one. It has wide ramifications. Our committee has heard many witnesses support the plan. They have left us many valuable suggestions, but such a proposition requires the greatest care in consideration. I doubt if the committee has time enough to draft a comprehensive measure. The committee is more likely to report a joint resolution to have a commission investigate the proposition and report to the next Congress a detailed plan for accomplishing the purpose.

The resolution introduced by Mr.

The resolution introduced by Mr. McSwain "to promote peace and to equalize the burdens and to minify the profits of war," points out that "It is the duty of Congress to require that the burdens and benefits of war shall be justly and fairly distributed," and that "modern warfare rests increas-ingly upon scientific knowledge and industrial resources and must be carried on by the Nation as a whole and merely by the young men in

It became apparent, even to the casual onlooker that the Republican party leaders had their work cut out for them to stem, if possible, the in-setting tide of po-litical feeling that meant difficulty for any Republican candidate.

Mr. Butler, who had been the President's successful national convention delegate campaigner, came to be looked upon as the man who would best manage the presidential campaign political complexion of the com expressed pleasure over the reception ing Congress, too, is in the balance given by the committee to the general and the announcement of Mr. Butler's hinted at and then announced in that characteristic way at Washington.

With a presidential campaign on his hands, Mr. Butler and his friends felt that he could not run the Massachusetts senatorial race against a strong campaigner like Senator Walsh and the demand for Governor Cox to enter the senatorial primaries grew in-sistent on the part of "dry" Republi-cans and the believers in some League of Nations. Governor Cox has an-nounced that he is for prohibition en-forcement, and he has not made himself hostile to the development of the sentiment that the United States interest itself in world affairs and a World Court of Justice.

Target for Attacks

The Governor soon became the target on a subsurface campaign that sought to embarrass him in retracting his announced political withdrawal and the Democrats did what they could through their newspapers and political workers to make the decision of the Governor to yield to the wishes of a strong "dry" element in the party and those who did not believe the United tSates can hold aloof from world affairs.

The campaign made by Louis A Coolidge gradually became more ag-gressive and yesterday Mr. Coolidge addressed himself to the President of of four members of the House Military Affairs Committee and two members lican leaders warning them that he lican leaders warning them that he resented as "interference" any over-tures leading to the influencing of selection of a particular individual to be the Republican candidate for the United States Senate.

All of these circumstances have many Republicans to speculate as to the attitude of Senator Lodge. It will be recalled that he and Senator Walsh were always in accord in Mr. Lodge's fight against the League of Nations. Senator Lodge was not a friend to the prohibition cause until the eighteenth amendment was carried and then he voted for the Volstead act and has always said that he favored enforceing the law eighteenth and nineteenth ing the law, eighteenth and nineteent ndments included both of which he had originally opposed.

Senator Walsh did not enter the campaign against Senator Lodge two years ago at any stage of the game and he was in the State but a short time that year. He made no speeches against Mr. Lodge. What attitude Senator Lodge will take in the ap-proaching senatorial campaign after Mr. Walish is renominated is a matter of much quiet speculation among Democrats as well as Republicans.

Selling, and Advertising Urged for Haverhill

5 HAVERHILL, Mass., May 7 (Special)-Urging the shoe manufacturers of Haverhill to unite their efforts and promote a plan of co-operative advertising, co-operative selling and co-operative buying, Austin E. We believes that the various shoe manufacturing firms in Haverhill must adopt some kind of co-perative action if they are to long survive the pressure of competition. We vive the pressure of competition. We believe that they must act as a unit on many things, act as one huge corporation, unite their efforts, and, in short, adopt the same relationship one to another as the various departments of one tremendous business bear one to another. The various independent firms here must forget their independence on many things and unite their strength in order that each may benefit as individuals and Co-operative Advertising. By co-operative advertising we mean a concerted centralized and sustained effort certed centralized and sustained effort on the part of the Haverhill Shoe Manufacturers' Association to make Haverhill shoes known to the world. A steady drive to boost Haverhill as a shoe city. We do not think that Haverhill shoe manufacturers will deny that Haverhill makes the best shoes in the world. If they believe that let them say it in a body. Haverhill makes different classes and grades of shoes, but Haverhill makes the best shoes in that class.

Co-operative Selling. Let each salesman sell Haverhill shoes, not his co-operative seining. Let each sales-man sell Haverhill shoes, not his firm's product alone. By that we mean where a salesman can turn a bit of trade to a manufacturer in Haverhill who is in a totally different class from the class his firm is in, why not do it? And. above all, let each salesman boost Haverhill at all times and in all places. Let Havertimes and in all places. Let Haver-hill firms specialize in the particular kind or grade or class of merchandise that their equipment, capital and ex-perience will enable them to help buyers to these firms and concentrate on these. Co-operative Buying.— It would seem that a co-operative buying plan could be worked out, especially if any degree of standardization in the Haverhill factories could be reached. General Co-operation.— A systematic, thorough, and careful watch over Haverhill as a city, by all bodies, in the matter of rents, food and clothing costs, safe buildings, clean streets. A watchful eye for every opportunity to get Haverhill before the public of the country in a favorable light. A determination to trade and buy in Haverhill, which is important.

SHIPPERS SEEK RATE ADJUSTING

Carriers Join in Petition to End Alleged Discriminations

A petition has been filed jointly by shippers and carriers asking the Inter- Building Trades Council of Boston, in state Commerce Commission to in-Vestigate class rates between points within trunk line territory and between points in that territory and points in central and New England territory. The petition further requests that an adjustment of the rates be established which will be properly related to the existing rate structures which have been evolved from prior nvestigations of the commission. W. H. Chandler, manager of the transportation bureau of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, is chairman of the general shippers' committee and was authorized to sign the petition in its behalf.

The purpose of the investigation is in order that the rate structure in question, which has for years been in a chaotic state, may be made orderly and comprehensible and adjusted on a basis which will provide for proper alignment with related rates. expected to be one of the most imtaken by the commission. The petitioners set forth that such an investigation is necessary in order to ascertain whether there exist, and, if so, to remove discriminations hetween localities and indusries located on or near the boundary lines of the various territories. Allegations of such discrimination in respect to the territory bordering on Central Freight Association and trunk line territories have been made on account of the establishment in Central Freight Association territory of a class rate system by the carriers and approved by the commission without the establishment of a correlated system of class rates

Similar allegations of discriminations, probably of a lesser degree, have been made as to the class rates in the territory bordering upon the boundary between New England and trunk line territories, owing to the establishment in New England territory, partly by the commission and partly by the carriers, of class rate structures likewise without the establishment of any correlated structure in trung line territory.

Besides bearing the signature of Mr. Chandler, the petition is signed by Robert N. Collyer, chairman of the Trunk Line Association; Frank van Ummersen, chairman of the New Eng-land Freight Association, and Eugene Morris, chairman of the Central nere May 17 or the Republican chair-men, women chairmen and secretaries of the cities and towns comprising the third and fourth congressional districts, for educational purposes in connection with the approaching presidential cam-Freight Association.

BUILDING COST MAY BE CUT

The legislative committee on mercantile affairs reported yesterday a bill which, if it becomes law, will change the building laws on Boston relating to load per square foot permitted to be carried on floors. John H. Mahony, building commissioner for Boston, said that if the law is amended reducing the load from 75 pounds, as now required, to 60 pounds, it will, cause much more building to be started and result in a said saving of from 15 to 20 per cent in the cost of the steel used.

The pamphlet report of the Western Pacific Railroad for 1923 shows net income of $1.819,795, equivalent after prediction of the law is amended reducing the load from 75 pounds, as now required, to 60 pounds, it will, cause much more building to be started and result in a said saving of from 15 to 20 per cent in the cost of the steel used.

Fine things being done for public other town in the State with one education in rural communities and small towns of Massachusetts, revealed in a report by a committee appointed to obtain information regarding progressive movements in rural educa-tion, include better teachers, better teaching, better buildings, and better facilities in every way. The commit-tee of superintendents, appointed a year ago by the state superintendent year ago by the state superintendent of schools, was composed of Herman C. Knight, Littleton, chairman; Marion W. Stanton, Princeton; Charles E. Varney, Lee; Frederic A. Wheeler, Longmeadow, secretary; Loring G. Williams, Sturbridge, and Burr F. Jones, representing the state department of the ment of education.

Their report, recently made public, shows, in fact, that rural education in Massachusetts is taking rapid strides forward, so that there is no longer the great gap that once existed between the education offered the city child and that offered the one living on the farm. While there is much needed improve-ment there is an awakening stir throughout the system and continued progress has been made by many communities, which is believed to contain the largest collection of cone-bearing trees and shrubs in the United States and probably the best in the world-only the few species known to occur on the mountains of New Guinea being the mountains of New Guinea being unrepresented—passed through the winter in splendid condition, according to a special bulletin devoted ex-clusively to the conifers.

ARBORETUM'S MANY CONIFERS PROVE HARDY THROUGH WINTER

Nearly All Known Species Thrive in Pinetum, the Silvan Laboratory for Experimental Planting

Among the species from milder cli-mates whose transplanting in Massa-chusetts has been largely experi-mental are the short-leaved pine of the southern states called Pinus echi-nate, the Tsuga heterophylla of the Pacific coast, the Japanese Cryptomeria japonica, Picea Breweriana and Libocedrus decurrens; the Cupressus Macnabiana of California and Oregon. grow on the sheltered side of Hemlock Hill. The most beautiful conifer introduced into cultivation by the Arboretum is probably Tsuga carolinlana. The seeds of this tree were first planted at the Arboretum in 1881, and the trees raised from these seeds are, to most people, the handsomest conifers in the collection.

It has taken a long time for the beauty of this tree to be appreciated, and there are few, if any, cultivated large trees outside of the Arboretum. It is becoming better known, however, every year, and one Massachusetts nursery company can supply ever, every year, and one massacnu-setts nursery company can supply plants of various sizes in great num-bers and at reasonable prices. The Colorado Picea Engelmannii of the Rocky Mountains is another good introduction of the Arboretum. At its best it is sometimes 120 feet high with a tal trunk often nine feet in flameter, frequently forming great forests up to altitudes of 10,000 to 12,000 feet, and is widely scattered above 5000 feet through the whole Rocky Mountain That this pinetum has done useful of wide distribution, in demonstrating that the plants raised from seeds of wide distribution, in demonstrating that the plants raised from seeds gathered in some parts of their range are hardier than in others. The trees from the coast states never have proved hardy in the east, but in 1873 and 1874 Dr. Parry sent to the Arboretum from Colorado seeds from which a hardy race of this tree was raised.

Probably, however, the most interesting experiment is the one with the Cedar of Lebanon. For centuries it was believed in western Europe that this tree grew naturally only on Mt. Lebanon in Palestine, and all the trees in cultivation were raised from seeds gathered on the Lebanon or from the trees grown from these seeds-in England or France.

A comparatively few years ago it was discovered that the Cedar of Lebanon formed forests on the Antitaurus Mountains in Asia Minor, about 500 miles north, and in a much colder region than the Lebanon. In 1901 the Arboretum sent a collector from Smyrna to the Antitaurus to collect seeds of the Cedar of Lebanon. He was very successful, and sent to the Arboretum a quantity of seeds and a large amount of herbarium material.

Much of the seed was distributed in Much of the seed was distributed in the United States and Europe, but no report from it has been received. The seeds planted here grew well but the trees have grown irregularly in size. The tallest of them are already at least 30 feet high and have grown more rapidly than any seedlings of conifers planted here in the Arboretum. These trees are hardy.

HARVARD BRIDGE STATE TO VOTE REPAIR ATTACKED ON CONVENTION

Speakers at State House Favor Entitely New Structure

Until late yesterday afternoon the Massachusetts House Ways and Means committee heard argument after argu-ment in favor of the building of an entirely new Harvard Bridge, connecting Massachusetts Avenue, Boston, with Massachusetts Avenue, Cambridge With few exceptions, the speakers took the position that it would be a great mistake for the Legislature to adopt the measure proposed by William D Lancaster, Representative, of Dorches ter, providing for the expenditure of $1.200,000 in repairs upon the present structure and for shortening the actual bridge construction by making promontories on each side of the Charles River. From the time, about noon, when James M. Curley, Mayor of Boston, made an appeal for the erection of a structure of a type and character of architecture commensurate with the ideals of Boston and of Cambridge, unthere was slight support of the bridge-repair plan.

Most unpopular of all of the features of the Lancaster program was that of building promontories into the basin on both sides of the river which would jut out toward mid-stream. It was urged by speakers that such an innovation would destroy the present pleasing contour of the Charles River Following Mr. Curley, Robert D. Andrews, R. Clipston Sturgis, C. Howard Walker, H. J. Carlson and Edward Hoyt, prominent architects, spoke. These men supported in the main the ideas voiced by the Mayor.

Mr Andrews reasserted his views upon the character of the bridge to be erected. He said that a structure of the kind he had in view and which Mr. Curley and many others also fa-vored, should be of stone. Mr. Andrews felt sure that such a bridge not only would be the most suitable and appropriate, but the most

Revision of New Hampshire Constitution Depends on Action in Election

CONCORD, N. H., May 7 (Special)— Enos K. Such a referendum is required under the Constitution to be taken once in seven years, and this is the

In 1917 the members of the convention, over 400 in number, were elected, but the conven-tion adjourned after a brief session "until after the war." In 1920 the convention met again, and submitted seven proposed amendments to the Constitution, all of which were subsequently rejected by the people at the ing exhibition at the Boston Public last presidential election.

In 1921 the convention was reconrened and resubmitted three amendments which were all rejected. ART

At the Casson Galleries

An exhibition of American paintings is on view at the Casson Galleries on Boylston Street. In such pictures as these it can be seen that the impulse that moved the French painters of the Toutdoors had its counterpart in the United States. Only a passionate fondness for nature similar to that of Rousseau and Corot could have brought these men to work with such fervor and Intensity.

Among others, there are two landscapes by Inness, whose profound sentiment and delicacy converted so great a number of Americans to the Barbizon point of view. By Blakelock there is a "Moonlight." "After Showers" by D. W. Tryon, with its storm blown sky, has the lyric sentiment of the artist. By An exhibition of American paintings on view at the Casson Galleries on he lyric sentiment of the artist John Enneking, painter of the artist. By John Enneking, painter of the New England landscape, there is the expansive, richly colored "Neponset Hills" with a brilliant gold sky. "Melting Snow" by Greenwood is atmospheric. Three landscapes by J. Francis Murphy have his usual soft, finely painted trees against lighted skies.

There are several others, a sunset scene by Homer Martin, a Venetian scene by Thomas Moran, a vigorous marine by Paul Dougherty. In all these landscapes there is a common note, the distinctive quality of painting. They have all outlived their day when they were considered radical and capricious. They have become a historical stepping stone. And yet, in spite of the fact that they have been superseded by the luminous painting of impressionism, we can still enjoy these masters for their exceedingly good taste and great respect for distinction and quality in painting.

MAINE'S POWER POLICY DEFENDED

Senator Brewster for Continuation and Further Development by Private Capital

DANVILLE JUNCTION, Me., May 7 (Special)-Adherence to the established policy of nontransmission of the water powers of the State was expressed by Senator Ralph O. Brewster, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, in an address here today before the Androscoggin Pomona Grange, This was Senator Brewster's first public utterance on the water power issue during the mes-ent campaign. He said:

ent campaign. He said:

It is the almost unanimous opinion of those with whom I have discussed this question during the past year, representing all shades of opinion, that Maine should adhere to its non-transmission policy. The more earn-estly we are urged by those outside the State to make a change in this respect, the more keenly we shall realize the importance of the position which we occupy, with 2,000,000,000 to 3,000,000,000 kilowatt hours per year of power undeveloped according to the latest estimates.

It is also to be remembered that huge developments and transmission lines serving southern New England will not be established unless some permanence of service is assured. This is indicated by the recent report of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts upon the power situation with particular reference to Canadian powers, where it says: "The question whether Canadian and provincial governments will give assurance that this amount of power will vincial governments will give assur-ance that this amount of power will be allowed to be transmitted for a sufficiently long term of years cannot be answered intil the problem is speci-fically presented to the Canadian and Quebec parliament and action taken

y them."

In so far as the remaining rights within the control of the State are concerned, either to water powers or to water storage sites. I believe the policy of lease rather than sale of these rights is clearly advisable and I have not heard this policy seriously questioned. These rights will be of inestimable value in another generation as must be recognized by any one surveying the power situation in the country today. A long-term lease along the lines provided for under the Federal Water Power Act, drawn under eral Water Power Act, drawn under the leadership of Theodore Roosevelt, the leadership of Theodore Roosevelt, protects the interests of the State and the people and also of the developing companies, assuring them adequate protection for their investments.

Let the non-transmission policy be continued and development of our water resources by private capital be encouraged. In so far as the remaining rights controlled by the State are concerned, let them be handled by a liberal policy of long-term leases with eral policy of long-term leases with the state's rights fully protected along the lines of the Federal Water Power Act as laid down by Theodore Roose-

Text of Peace Resolution

The resolution said: It is resolved, that, on the basis of the actions of former conventions expressing our conviction that war should be outlawed, and our feeling of responsibility for the promotion of peace and better understanding between nations; and in favor of the action of the netional board indors. between nations; and in tavor of the action of the national board indorsing the entrance of the United States into the Permanent Court of International Justice, and with the conviction that the League of Nations viction that the League of Nations offers itself as a further means toward developing stable and equitable relationship among nations, we, the Young Women's Christian Association of the United States of America, pledge ourselves to use our efforts to secure the entrance of the United States into the League of Nations;

Among those who urged acceptance of the resolution was the Countess of Portsmouth. The League, she said, had already done a great deal not only in ameliorating the post-war troubles of the stricken countries, but also in actually on more than one occasion preventing the outbreak of war.

Summing up the work of the con-vention in an interview with newspaper representatives at the close of the session, the president, Mrs. Fred-erick M. Paist of Philadelphia, said in part:

The convention's actions have the convention's actions nave an ineed in thoughts of the leaders of the association. Our political influence has, I think, been very conservatively handled in the past, and the large conservative element in our national board is an assurance that it will continue to be so handled in the future.

Those whom they met from other nations, too, were very excepother nations, too, were very excep-tional women. This is going to broaden the international attitude of persons outside the association

The decision on where the convention is to meet in 1926 will be later by the national board. At the closing session invitations were extended on behalf of Los Angeles, Cal.; Denver, Colo.; Kansas City, Mo.; New Orleans, La., and Philadelphia, Pa. One of the

Miss Phillips represented the Young Women's Christian Association in a recent appeal to the Secretary of State for Home Affairs, for better factory conditions in England. As a result of the appeal, which was made by 16 other organizations besides the Young Women's Christian Association, the Labor Government has announced that a new factory bill will be introduced.

Questions such an inadequate heat and lighting in the workrooms, the discontinuation of all underground workshops, and the present limited number of inspectors are included in the six points which were brought to the attention of Rhys Davis, Under-Secretary of State for Home Affairs. While the exact provisions of the new factory bill are not known, Miss Phil-lips has been officially informed that the 48-hour law will be included.

In honor of the mothers of the land, Channing H. Cox, Governor of Massachusetts, has proclaimed next Sunday "Mother's Day" in the Commonwealth, and made the following state-

In the quiet places of the world as well as in the busy marts of trade and centers of industry, there is a beautiful sentiment that needs no creed, no dogma, no ritual, to keep it ever present and vital. It is the love of Mother.

it ever present and vital. It is the love of Mother.
Since the world begun this love has been the inspiration and guide of childhood, manhood and womanhood, and will continue to be a compelling force for righteousness till the human race is no more.

This love, so beautiful and true, when possessed by a matron, makes it strong in moral fibre. In its sympathy for the poor and unfortunate, keen, to safeguard the home and mighty in the devotion of its people. May the love of Mother continue to be an ever-increasing influence for truer and better home life in this

Supreme Council Unlikely to Be Revived Immediately

By Special Cable

PARIS, May 7-hTe definite statements that have been made in certain quarters that the Allied Supreme Council will be revived early next month with the premiers of England, France, Belgium and Italy and an American observer present, are completely unconfirmed. There is a possibility that, such a meeting will be held, but all statements concerning it are merely of of the character of intelligent anticipaon. No arrangements, the representative of The Christian Science Monitor is informed, have been made.

Nevertheless, it is believed that George Theunis, Belgian Prime Minin talks in Paris and London, ister. found the prime ministers disposed to agree in theory with the idea of the Supreme Council, provided there was Presbytery. He argued that the Supreme Council, provided such a building to the use of another Supreme Council, provided a virtual such a building to the use of another a preliminary discussion and a virtual a preliminary discussion and a virtual appear. Afterwards he was cross-examined assurance of agreement. M. Poincaré y T. W. Bird of Nelson, B. C.; J. L. has not opposed the conference as has not opposed the conference as such, but regards it as the crown of preliminary negotiations. To go into a supreme council of a spectacular kind with the risk of failure or a fiasco, is repugnant to M. Poincaré. But when it is known precisely what majority he has in the new Parliament, and when the various countries appear likely to agree, there would be no objection ot calling a Supreme Council meeting to complete the work.

Salem Claims 10 Have Oldest Boys' Club in the United States

The Fraternity, Lodged in Building Designed by Charles - Bulfinch, Was Established in April, 1869

Rounding out 55 years of continuous existence this month, the Salem Fraternity claims to be the oldest boys' club in the United States.

It was on April 21, 1869, that, to quote from the fraternity's report of "the experiment fairly began. that generous gesture of farighted men and women to provide a wholesome place of entertainment for the young which would compare successfully with the unwholesome atmos phere of the streets, has grown a work so far-reaching in its results that it cannot be estimated.

Quietly, efficiently, blazing a trail in territory practically uncharterd for years, it has in the passing of more than half a century meant more to the city of Salem and to the to the city of Salem and to the thousands of boys it has served than any of its founders hoped or dreamed.

Comparing the average daily attendance of 244 for the past year with an average monthly attendance of 200 in 1875 demonstrates the growth of the

Reaching Boys in the Street From the outset the society bent its energies toward reaching the boys of the street at their most impression-able age, although at first its doors were open to all and its library which grew from a few shelves of books to 5000 volumes was for over 15 years the only free library that Salem had.

With the establishment of the Salem Public Library in 1889, the work of the Fraternity in that direction was practically over and all of its attention was directed to the boy.

In 1899 through the generosity of friends, the Fraternity was able to purchase its present home, a sturdy brick structure on Central Street, originally built from the design of Charles Bulinch, for the Essex Bank in 1811. Its ample proportions provided admirably for the needs of a hors' culp. On the first floor which boys' club. On the first floor which has a stud of 15 feet a gymnasium, 33x21 feet, and a library 20 feet square were provided. The second floor had classrooms and an amusement room and in the exceptionally high basement a workroom was fitted out.

It is here, in surroundings substan-tially unchanged, that the work of the Fraternity has gone steadily on for 25 years. Under the genial influence of Herbert C. Farwell, superintendent, for all that time and of the volunteer helpers in class work who year in and year out have given generously of their time and patience, have come thousands of boys to play, to study and to learn lessons in citizenship that have been invaluable.

Sent Home Before 9 o'Clock

The rooms are open from 9 a.m. to 9:30 p. m., but the younger boys are sent home before the 9 o'clock In the evenings the rooms are taxed to their capacity and almost any afternoon finds the readand any arctinous haus the featuring room and gymnasium well patronized. In order to give all the boys an equal chance in the rooms the fraternity has recently adopted a plan whereby a bank book becomes practically the only card of admission.

A deposit of even a penny entitles a boy to the use of the gymnasium, to play pool or billiards and when there is a big demand for smaller games or books, the depositor gets the preference. When the deposits total $1 the boy is encouraged to transfer it to a savings bank and thus begins his lesson in thrift.

A-legend on the blackboard in the reading room reads, "It takes $600 to $800 for a boy to go to college. How much have you saved?"

They are an eager lot, those boys who come to make deposits every evening. Their deposit books are in many cases happy tales of thrifty progress and in others, pathetic little stories of painstaking effort to build penny by penny, only to see it melt away before the 100 cents that make the dollar can be gathered together.

There is the case of small Stevie.

His deposits grew slowly to the proud place of 25 cents. Then 20 cents were withdrawn. Again the slow procession of pennies came in until they totaled 46. And then his withdrawal took them all. He began again and the pennies grew to 71, and melted, all but one. What happened to all your money,

"What happened to all your money, Stevie?" he was asked.

His big eyes were serious, almost sad as he answered, "Mother needed the 20 cents for some bread. She didn't have any money. An' then I spent some, Christmas. It got a kid brother an' a baby, too. An' yestidy I had to get a pair of shoes f' Easter. My mother didn't have enough money so I had to take out the 70 cents. But I'm goin' to try to save enough to go sight. Deposits for the first three months of this year total $635.88. This represents 6566 deposits. For the six months ending March 31, 1924, 95 transfers from the small club deposit books to more permanent deposits in the savings bank have been made These are the real indications of prog ress in thrift, according to the super intendent, for money once transferred thus is only withdrawn to meet an emergency.

Lending of Equipment

Another policy that has grown out of the thrift plan is the lending of such equipment of tricycles, roller and ice skates, sleds, skiis and snowshoes The Salem Rotary Club provided 10 pairs each of skiis, snowshoes, ice and roller skates, and these loaned for a week at a time, to en-courage outdoor sport. A book showing a balance of a dollar entitled the owner to borrow a tricycle, a sled, skiis or snowshoes, while a book showing 50 cents permits the borrowing of ice or roller skates.

"The plan has more than one good feature," said Mr. Farwell. "The feature," said Mr. Farwell. "The boy's deposit is his guarantee to repair any damage done to the article he borrows, and this develops in him a sense of responsibility. It makes him careful of things which do not belong to him and eventually makes him careful of things generally, whether they are his own or another's We have had very little trouble with any of the articles loaned to the boys,

Lesson in Thrift

Stevie is getting, beside the lesson in thrift, a feeling of importance and in thrift, a feeling of importance and increased gas and electric bills testify eloquently to the success in this quarter. The only difficulty encountered was to get the boys to go home at closing time.

"I dunno," and he shrugged. "Takes a lot. Yuh haf ten look good." Stannie's necktie was, by the way, impeccable and his merry look is an index to his pleasure-loving soul.

And then there is small Eddie, only 7, with a total of $1.36 to his credit and no withdrawals. He has been saving only a few weeks.

W. L. Wei, Tech Graduate, Plans to "Eliminate Middlemen" From Trade With United States

The cementing more closely of the trade relations between China and the United States is the aim of W. Lock Wei, graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Columbia University, director in two Chinese University, director in two Chinese banks and representative of several large Hong Kong and Shanghai business houses, who is in Boston in the interests of greater expansion of trade between these countries.

Federal statistics show that the total foreign commerce of the United States, both exports and imports, with the Far East, gained $125,000,000 in the first nine months of the current fiscal year, ending with March, as compared with the previous corre-sponding period. Mr. Wei said that these figures, which show that 23½ per cent of the foreign trade of the United States is with the Far East, are ing which includes four or more in-termediatories, is one of the prime objects of Mr. Wei's visit.

In an interview with a representative of The Christian Science Monitor, Mr. Wei pointed out the unnecessary expense and delay of the present system of trading between the two nations, even by American firms with branch offices in China. As described by Mr. Wei, the American representatives of business concerns, stationed in China, usually know little of the language, cusioms or conditions of Clana.

Their policy ordinarily is to hire a native Chinese of some wealth and influence to arrange direct with the merchants and place contracts. He, in turn, not being experienced particularly in business methods, hires an expert in business lines to handle the work for him. The expert then hires natives to do the actual work, with the result that merchandise brought into China costs considerably more than it should, Mr. Wei explained.

Mr. Wel cited, for illustration, the large purchase and use of varnish in China. He visited scores of paint and varnish manufacturing plants in this country and discovered that a saving of 20 per cent is possible to the merchants of China, by dealing direct with the manufacturer.

He nas found a market in New England for some of the chief products of China, to be sent direct, instead of through the usual trading channels and is seeking direct connection with paper mills turning out the grades of paper desired in China, at prices possible to permit business.

Wel said that Swedish and Norwegian paper is used in China, as a rule, for newspapers and books, but that a substantial business is done with American paper mills for stationery and parchment papers.

In addition to being a director in the Union Bank of China, Ltd., of Shanghai, and in the Oriental Commercial Bank of Shanghai, Mr. Wei is a representative of the General Commercia Company, Ltd., with offices in Hongkong and Shanghai. His father and long have been engaged in mer

DETROITERS RESENT RABIES PUBLICITY

Council Defers Action on Vaccine Measure Following Organization's Protests

DETROIT, Mich., May 7 (Special)-Many Detroit residents who oppose socalled preventive vaccines and serums are roused over the Detroit Board of Health giving wide publicity to a "rabies scare," which seemingly has developed since the Common Council rerused to adopt an ordinance making anti-rables vaccination of dogs a prerequisite to licensing.

The council "pigeon-holed" the proposed ordinance after protests from members of the Detroit Kennel Club and the representatives of the Animal Welfare Society. However, Dr. Henry F. Vaughan, commissioner of health, has placed the vaccination order in nas placed the vaccination order in effect by leaving in force the Board of Health order for vaccination, issued when he supposed the council would acquiesce in his demand. Police are now requiring vaccina-tion of all dogs for which license ap-plications are made, it was learned, from James Schermerhorn Jr., secre-tary of the Board of Health. In Ferndale, a suburb of Detroit, more than 150 dogs are reported to have been shot on the streets Wednesday and Thursday of last week. So Detroit several animals were fatally clubbed when children, bitten while playing with or teasing the animals, reported injuries.

Arthur Curtis, state officer of the Animal Welfare Society, said:

What will be the composition of the new Chamber which will soon be elected? The record of the Chamber which has come to an end is being put before the French people by both sides. One side finds it a good record, the other side, as is natural, finds it a bad record. In the ordinary course, and the side of the s record. In the ordinary course deputies are elected for four years, but owing to the derangement caused by the war recent parliaments have been somewhat longer than is usual. The last Chamber was elected in Novem-ber, 1919, and therefore had four and a half years of existence. They were the most difficult years that could possibly be imagined, years of negotiations, years of disappointments, years of unfilled promises. France had believed that Germany would pay, and spent money like water on the repair of the devastated regions. The first year something like 55.000,000,000 francs were spent, although the budgetary receipts amounted to less than 12,000,-000,000 francs. Not until this year when the franc crashed downward did Parliament see that it was necessary to set aside expectations on German and to balance the budget. Happily the truth is now seen and the path which would eventually lead to bankruptcy will no longer be taken. It will be for the new Parliament to introduce even sounder methods of finance.

The principal feature of the Min-istry has been the occupation of the Ruhr and the appointment of committees of experts whose reports are now being considered. There is a real hope that we are on the eve of solutions of the baffling problems. It is this hope that will stand M. Poincaré in good stead. M. The call for the convention of the La Follette-For-President Club de-clares: "This will be the first step in the great movement now forming, de-signed to restore government of, by and for the people, and put it in the hands of their real representatives." The platform on which the Farmer-Labor convention meets embodies these planks: Government ownership and operation of railroads and other public utilities, governmental bank-ing, public control of natural re-soruces, preservation of all civil rights guaranteed by the Constitution, and legislation to prevent judicial abuses.

MICHIGAN'S PINE REPLANTING GAINS PEOPLE'S SUPPORT

LANSING, Mich., May 4 (Special Correspondence)-Michigan, once the leading source of white pine in America, now is denuded almost completely of that kind of merchantable timber, but it is coming back. Arbor Day, May 2, was observed this year probably as never before. Many thousand trees will be planted this year in restricted areas. The State will put out 1000 more trees this spring than it usually plants. usually plants.

Marcus Schaaf, state forester for Marcus Schaaf, state forester too 14 years, believes all the devastated region which was cut over wastefully for its pine lumber could be refor-ested. Mr. Schaaf says: "There is a growing sentiment in support of the State's reforestation of the cutover regions. The initfal appropriation was for only $2500, while the last Legislature appropriated $75,-000. The State now has 15,000 acres planted to white pine, Norway pine and Jack pine, making such progress that the time may come soon when the people will realize so vividly what can be done they will demand the reforestation of otherwise useless re-

CHICAGO, May 7 - Without any those in touch with Mexicans colonizing hereabouts exhibits a general conviction that many of the newcomers merely slipped across the border when nobody was looking.

"About 50 per cent of the Mexicans here came in without inspection," estimates Miss Marian Schibsby, superintendent of the Imm kraats' Protective League. "It is so easy." One where poverty is well nigh as general, $8 is often as severe a restriction, and many prefer to walk over the river at night.

"Quite a number of Mexicans are here, drawn by high wages paid for unskilled labor: Many came in violation of law, probably a great many did. The condition of the Mexican border has made it easy to get across.
"A number of cases of Mexicans being here without warrant have come to our attention through deportation proceedings. A great many never do come to attention. There is no way to check on one nationality. It is a prob-lem in process of solution. Mr. Ebey said that there is no quota set for Mexico limiting the amount of legal Mexican immigration but that as many Mexicans can come in legally as may be properly admitted. All that as may be properly admitted. All that a Mexican in Juarez has to do is to a Mexican in Juarez has to do is to cross over the bridge, apply for ad-mission and be examined by the in-spector. DIVERTING ELLIS ISLAND INCOME TO NEEDED REPAIRS ADVOCATED

Official Declares Station Money-Maker for Treasury, Urging Improvements to Abate European Complaints

Special from Monitor Bureau NEW YORK, April 28-If the earnings of Ellis Island were turned to betterments in the immigration plant there, conditions on the island would be so materially improved that com-plaints by European powers against the treatment accorded their nationals on arrival at the port of New York would be negligible, an important im-migration official told The Christian Science Monitor correspondent here today. The Ellis Island that he described was a money maker for the federal treasury.

"From a mere business point of view Ellis Island has turned into the federal treasury during the last fiscal year alone nearly enough clear profit to cover the appropriation of $2,-541,620 requested last December, he said. The island receipts for head tax, steamship fines and detention charges totaled $3,028,762, while the expenses of the island were but $1,-200,850, leaving a profit for the one year ending June 30, 1923, of $1.827,-912. It was never intended that this station should be run for the profit of the United States Government, but that is what is being done now at the expense of the proper upkeep of the island itself, which in the last analyis means at the expense of the immigrants and of our own American

Revision of Law Sought

The best place to view the actual peration of the existing immigration law and regulations doubtless is at Ellis Island, which acts as the clear-ing house for about 65 per cent of all the aliens who come to the United States, and nowhere, perhaps, has the need for a revision of some phases of the existing law been more clearly illustrated. Widespread criticism and diplomatic representations have disconsiderable attention to Ellis rected considerable attention to Ellis Island of late, but all this, it seems, has been merely to attack the problem from the wrong angle. Much of the criticism has been justified. Ellis Island officials admit this quite frankly, but they are not disposed to take all the blame on their own shoulders. It is hardly fair, they say, to blame the horses when the wagon breaks down from overloading.

And this is exactly what has happened under the 3 per cent quota law which went into effect in June, 1921, limiting the number of aliens enter-ing the United States in a filscal year to 3 per cent of the foreign born per-sons of such nationality resident in the United States as shown by the census of 1910, and also limiting the monthly quotas to 20 per cent of the annual quota. Ellis Island became the immigration station for the port of New York in 1890, superseding the old Castle Garden, now the Aquarium. What was considered adequate when the Ellis Island buildings were erected has long since passed that stage, so that now with antiquated provisions for housing 1200 immigrants, it is often called upon to accommodate wice that number who are detained there, according to Maj. Henry H. Curran, Commissioner of Immigration at Ellis Island.

in July and which is designed to limit the quotas to 2 per cent, based on the 1890 census, and to give American conand to give American consults the various tests and finally stations will relieve power to accept or reject applicants prior to embarkation. This will relieve greatly the congestion which Ellis Island officials have had to contend with since 1921, though it will not provide the new buildings and equipment which are needed.

into effect, for with its adoption the rush of immigrants permitted to enter the United States in a year was over vided. Immigrants going inland are the United States in a year was over in the first five months, each country taking full advantage of the 20 per cent monthly quota provision. The rush of applicants has been so excessive that in some instances the quota for a whole month has been exhausted the first day and even some of the larger quotas have been exhausted in from 15 to 18 days.

"One of the grave perils of this system," said one of the chief Ellis Island authorities, "was the racing between steamships to get their immigrants over the line in time." He added:

The consequent congestion of every

The consequent congestion of every port for several months made it import for several months made it impossible to inspect all the first day's arrivals for from six to ten days thereafter. The result was that the immigration service had to take-eare of a round year's business, with no increase in our forces, in from five to six months. countries did not stop even after the exhaustion of their quotas. Certain steamship companies took advantage of these decisions to bring here several thousand immigrants in excess of the authorized quotas, all of which has increased the work and has interfered with efficient, well-organized service.

Many Classes Eliminated

For that reason we have been unable to catch up with the arrearage in our routing work, which was neglected in taking care of the flood of human beings which were on hand, and unless the Supreme Court very quickly presess the decisions of the lower courts this condition will prevail until July, when the new law becomes effective.

The new law, in addition to its other provisions, fortunately—as far as the efficiency of the service is concerned also eliminates a number of classes which under the present law are re-garded as exempt and which increase normal maximum of olien arrivals several hundred thousand. Under present law 357,000 in round numwere admitted to this country in the last fiscal year and charged to the annual quota, but the total num-ber of arrivals has appreximated

There has been much criticism of the conduct of Ellis Island, due to the bringing here in five or six months of a number of arrivals expected in a year, and off the lack of adequate facilities for handling such a number. The inadequacy of these accommodations has been reported by Ellis Island officials from time to time for years past and special appropriations have been requested to give us adequate and decent equipment. Unfortunately the necessary approprifortunately the necessary appropriations were not granted. In fact in-sufficient money was allotted to keep even the present buildings and equipment in proper repair.

Every year requests have been made for appropriations ranging from several thousand to several million tollars. It is thought that these appropriations should have been made in view of the fact that the head to. propriations should have been made in view of the fact that the head tax of $$ each and the various fines imposed on steamship companies with other revenue accruing have totaled something more than $1,000,000 annually in excess of any appropriation made for the immigration service. During the last fiscal year the head tax coupled with the fines imposed on steamship companies and the regulation charge for lodging, also applied to the steamship companies, equaled in round numbers $3,100,000 for the port of New York alone. Yet the entire appropriation for the immigration service for the entire country and all coasts was only $3,300,000.

The whole arrangement of the buildings at Ellis Island is wrong for the present needs, according to officials. There is no proper outdoor space for exercise and recreational purposes. Better ventilation, plumbing, tiling and telephone connections are needed. Much painting and other repair work needs to be done. It is proposed to extend the island by a sea wall to provide more open spaces and also to erect a separate building for the use of children as a nursery and kindergarfen. The most pressing need is for comfortable two-tier white iron beds, but thus far these have been work, to inspect all aliens who come to the United States by way of the port of New York as passengers. Missionary Council Chairman Finds Marked Improvement

-Has Visited 18 Nations By Cable from Monitor Bureau

LONDON. May 7-Dr. John Mott, who sails for America on the Majestic today after a four months' absence, during which he visited 18 different countries, says that when he contrasts the conditions of affairs in Europe with these lett were heartfast. rope with those last year he notices a very real improvement, and that when he contrasts them with those of three years ago the improvement is almost unbelievable.

He has been in particular touch with the younger generation through Central and Southern Europe having visited universities from Germany and Poland to those in Rumania, Greece and Jugoslavia.

"I have cound relatively few pessimists among the younger generation." he said. "There is a hopefulness, idealism and spirit of adventure which is highly reassuring. The old generation must remember we have to deal 'in futures.' and take a long view." Mr. Mott, who, on the eve of his departure, attended a meeting of the International Missionary Council in London, of which he is chairman, also spoke enthusiastically of the conferences he held in the Near East, finishing with one of workers among the Moslems at Jerusalem. He said these gatherings showed Islam had been affected at its keystone, and was breaking away from former tradi-tions politically through the Caliphate difficulty, socially through the emanci-pation of women and their education, and even religiously.

"There is a confession of inadequacy of Muhammadanism to meet the situation," he said, "and an accessibility to a friendly and constructive pres-entation of the Christian religion." He also referred appreciatively to the very friendly relations he had enjoyed with the ecclesiastics and laymen of the Greek, Armenian, Coptic and Assyrian churches, as well as the autonomous Greek churches in the Balkans, which he believed to be able increasingly to work with representatives of western Christianity in facing common prob-

Resolution at National Chamber of Commerce Convention Calls for Thorough Inquiry

CLEVELAND, O., May 7 (Special)-Business men and farmers of the country as represented at the meeting of the National Chamber of Commerce join hands in opposing general salary increases for all postal employees such as are now contemplated in the bills under consideration in Congress. A resolution against such a policy was recommended and adopted at the meeting of the transportation and communication group. Lucius Teter, president of the Chicago Trust Company and chairman of the committee on postal service, offered the resolution.

The committee also adopted a reso lution offered by Dr. W. H. Walker, representing the American Farm Bureau Federation, opposing any increase in postal rates to meet the increase in postal salaries until the investigation now in progress by the postal department has been completed. Any such legislation, the resolution reads, would be without knowledge of the facts and consequently unfair to both the postal employees and the public. Dr. Walker said that the farmers are most concerned and they ask the business men and merchants to unite with them to bring about a deliberate consideration of the facts before any action is taken.

Admiral L. C. Palmer, president of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, asserted at the luncheon meeting vesterday that the merchant marine come to stay and urged that the idea of emergency be divorced from the fleet corporation. He said that the only thing that will give foreign comonly thing that will give foreign com-petitors much concern is to find that the United States is really working and getting down to a business basis.

At the opening session yesterday the Government's balance sheet was presented by Gen. Herbert M. Lord, director of the Bureau of the Budget, who showed how, through the operations of the bureau, estimated deficits have been converted into actual surpluses. He said in part:

Today, for the first time in the history of the Government, the Executive really has control of the Government's financial procedure. The budget he submits to Congress is his recommendation. The budget and accounting act specifically provides that only the President is authorized to submit estimates to Congress. that only the President is authorized to submit estimates to Congress. Under the budget procedure, all legislation contemplated by the executive departments, and all comments by them upon legislation proposed in Congress, must be submitted to the President for his consideration and determination, whether or not it is in line with his financial pelicy.

Congress determines if the amount should be alowed, but it has now definitely before it each year a well digested carefully prepared statement of the Government's resources and definite policy of operation.

Professor Biagi looked up with a smile. "By the way," he remarked, "I consider that the people of the United States have the first libraries in the world because of the perfection of their system of cataloguing and classifying. Australia May Divide States

Size of Political Divisions Is Clog on Government

ALBURY, New South Wales, April 3 Special Correspondence)-The State Cabinet has agreed to the appointment of a commission to inquire into the rangement, and make the business of government less unwieldly. The com-mission, of course, will only be able to deal with the problem so far as it affects New South Wales, but if any-thing tangible comes of its delibera-tions it is hoped that Queensland, South Australia, and possibly West Australia, will fall into line, and that the Fèderal Government will provide facilities for giving effect to its recommendations by an amendment of the Constitution.

Under the present system the interprofessor Biagi here handed me a copy of the manuscript. "Look," he said, "how strange this is, the manuscript ends with these words, "St. Hélène. Petite lib." "Look professor Biagi if there was much in the library that was of especial interest to Americans.

"There is indeed," he answend. "The library is famous for the maps it is of the country districts are lost sight of to a very great extent, owing to the seat of government being in the capital, and because of the great preponderance of electors in the large cities. The development of the outer ports has also been retarded because of the same reasons, and this has had an adverse effect on Australia as a whole. That the Federal Government realizes the soundness of the arguments advanced by the new state advocates is evidenced by the fact that it is pushing on with the construction ests of the country districts are lost it is pushing on with the construction of the capital at Canberra, and has provided for a new port at Jervis Bay. "That is a gig umbrella," Grannie explained. "Grandfather and I used to put it up over our heads if it came on to rain when we were out driving." "Didn't you have the sedan then Grannie?" Janet inquired with in-

"No, indeed," laughed Grannie. "We had never even seen one in those days.

"It must have been great fun under the umbrella," said Janet, "much more fun than being shut up in the sedan." A few days later Janet was playing on the lawn with Martha, the little girl from next door. Martha had brought her new kitchen set which included a tiny stove with a lot of little cooking utensils. Narrow, Noisy Streets

But above it all, noise, here as in La Guayra! The streets are narrow, and the corners obscured by the flush-built houses and the narrow sidewalk pavements, so the motor car horns roar at each corner, and the tinkling bell of the coaches pierces even above the sound of the horns, so that in the center of the city, at the busy corners, bediam reigns. Street cries add their picturesque bit, from the calls of the sweetmeat seller, who has fresh coconut candy made with brown sugar on this particular day, to the vender of newspapers.

It is all interesting and pleasing, genuine and unaffected. People live rulers who have followed in his footast the road opens to them to live, steps. Some like Guzman Blanco, and nowhere are calm and poise more perhaps, have added jewels to the near 300 years. Venezuela has always been a dictatorship, for the short and stormy periods between its powerful rulers have no significance at all in the panorama of history. The great Bolivar himself, who led his tater-demailon legions across the Andes and down into Peru and beyond, established the dictatorship, and knowing his people well, told them that their democracy must grow up beneath the benign rule of strong and wise men.

Province Declared to Suffer Economically From Policy Which Makes Liquor Shops of Grocery Stores

MONTREAL, May 2 (Special Correspondence) - The Quebec experiment with government operation of the liquor traffic has been attended with unsatisfactory results and those who hoped that government control would mean restriction, limitation and reduction of the sale and consumption reduction of the sale and consumption of liquors now are forced to admit that the reverse has been the result, according to the Rev. E. I. Hart, secretary of the Prohibition Federation of Quebec. Mr. Hart, reviewing his impressions of the liquor situation in Quebec in an interview with a representative of The Christian Science Monitor, and Monitor, said:

Groceries Sell Liquor In the old days of the barroom licenses had been gradually reduced until there were only 400 liquor licenses for the whole Province, and licenses for the whole Province, and these were practically confined to the larger cities. About two-thirds of the population were "dry." Now there are more than 2000 places in the provinces where liquor can be procured legally. In Montreal alone there are over 300 public drinking places, 35 Government stores for the sale of "hard" liquors, and nearly 600 groceries with licenses to sell beer, according to the last available report of the Liquor Commission. It has become obvious that the Provincial Government, which is greatly in need of revenues, has been pushing rather than attempting to restrict the sale of intoxicants, and self-respecting eitzens are becoming strict the sale of intoxicants, and self-respecting citizens are becoming disgusted with the results of the Government policy, and chagrined to know that the quaint, conservative old Province, of which they are so proud, is being called the "barroom of the continent."

The consequence is that the temperance forces are becoming very active, and are now engaged in a province-wide work of organization which is bound to bring about a change for the better before long. This new movement for prohibition, after a period of general apathy, is receiving aid and encouragement from unexpected quarters.

Drys Are Roused

The movement with which I am connected is mainly supported by Protestants, but we are not the only disillusioned section of the population. An important movement is growing among the French-speaking and Irish Roman Catholic population.

In spite of the overshadowing

In spite of the overshadowing power of the Government, supported by a press which favors the wet interests, the policy of the Government control of the liquor traffic in this Province is now definitely on the defensive.

Province is now definitely on the defeasive.

Business men and large employers of abor are now beginning to question whether the fact that the Government makes a few millions out of the liquor business is of any serious consequence, compared with the patent fact that the Province suffers economically from the effects of the liquor business. Last year one-third of the business failures of all Canada occurred in Quebec, and the firms falling in this Province represented one-half of the total liabilities. The foreman of one of the largest construction companies in Canada told me that on one job in Montreal he has been discharging workmen for drunkenness at the rate of 12 a day. Montreal and Quebec city are suffering from serious unemployment, as the recent reports of the Government Employment bureau show, and the exodus to the United States continues.

For 15 years General Gomez has ruled as President of Venezuela. He has brought great peace, he has paid off much of the foreign debt, until today that obligation is only some $20,000,000. He has been wise enough to keep deepest friendship with the United States, so that never does any incident grow into a reason for dispute. He has fathered the most just and effective petroleum law in force anywhere, and the greatest flood of foreign capital going into Latin America is now pouring into Venezuela for oil development. Of course, there are many entries in the vocal competitions and in the choral contests, and these are the ones that have their final hearings in the evenings, also the orchestras and the bands. In the smaller contests, like the Sunday school orchestras, the flute solo, the trombone-solo and the bassoon solo, the finals are decided at the morning and afternoon trials.

STRAIGHT on the heels of the Artists of America, apparently oblivious of playing second fiddle to their elders, or, if so aware, at least undeterred from filling the much-hung spaces of the Fine Arts Building with another array of conventional art. The same walls that but a short time back reflected the combined glories of the Academy now shed a similar but more fitful luster, eacdemic in the main and tempered to the less pretentious aims of this organization. This is, however, the eleventh annual convention of the A. A. A., and theyre must be a goodly aim and satisfaction within the ranks to foster its movements from year to year, for it must be confessed there is nothing of a particularly exhilarating nature about the present show or its predecessors.

Browne's stagy but impressive view of Ronda calls a halt in the easy stages of the Vanderbilt Gallery, the purpling Spanish hills and leaping arches of the town making a dark and dramatic design. Roy Brown is also effective in his istylistic version of Sonhegan Valley, and William Ritschel's moonlit vision of Californian rocky shore and Chauncey F. Ryder's spacious valley scene, with stumpy, blue mountain beyound, are both high lights of the exhibition. Elsewhere in the building John E. Costigan has two studies of rustic life in his interesting style—this peculiar technical trick of heaping up pigment finger high. Sidney Dickinson's figure study is sure to win the verdict of the public approval, so lifelike and arresting are the flesh tones and various accessories. Orlando Rouland has two popular pictures here, and Wayman Adams is sketchier than ever in an amusing portrait of George Elmer Brown. Hobart Nichols and John Folinsbee are none too well represented in the landscapes they have elected to send, but for the most part there is good measure meted out. There are three large lunettes by E. Irving Couse, designed for the Missouri stage Capitol at Jefferson City, for variety, and there is a small showing of sculpture by way of contrast.

What Scott Fitzgerald did brilliantly but with vitalizing irony, Mr. Fergusson has repeated in this latest novel without revealing any new facets. At Tiffany's a tray of unset precious stones was once set out and the writer allowed to let them trickle through fingers, a stream of glittering color flashing from the perfectly cut facets. for a world that he should welcome, not waive. It is needful to emphasize this because in recent days, Mr. Spingarn has been overlooked as a poet of life, as a man of intense activity, and regarded chiefly as the exponent of Croce in America

The truth is that Spingarn's career has been long and fruitful. Educated at Columbia and at Harvard, he was professor of comparative literature in Columbia until 1911, when his removal from office did him honor. He has in business; he has even stood for Congress; every humanitarian cause has found in him a champion with personality and pen. A leader in the defense of the Negro, he became, during the war, a major of infantry in the A. E. F.

From this to the ætheticism of Croce seems a far cry; yet it means simply that Spingarn has not allowed the numerous activities of his career to dim his æsthetic vision. He writes, he criticizes, out of a life that he has lived; he is none the least activities of his career with adolescents; all painted in with gentle, high-bred atmosphere of the same certainty of touch is manifest in lived; he is none the less a man for quest of beauty; beauty in life, beauty D'Atrée; Monsieur le Commandant rein letters. in her career as a miniaturist, has accomplished a new form of artistic achievement with her autobiography. Her method has been to divide her 49 years into seven reels, characterizing them as the Lullaby Reel, the Lyric Reel, the Ballad Reel, Reel, the Lyric Reel, the Ballad Reel, the Roundelay Reel, the Idyll Reel, the Sonnet Reel, and lastly, the Threnody Reel.

Miss Daviess writes of her early days in the south, of her brief but un-satisfactory period at college, and her gay days as a southern society girl. Suddenly, when she was 23 years old, it occurred to her in the midst of a dance that she was a useless member of society and that she had better try to do something. She studied art and went to Paris, on borrowed money, to pursue her work. Her life in the Latin Quarter and the friends she made there afford material for a colorful story. She learned to do charming miniatures, and returned to the United States to establish a studio.

Through a literary group that met in her studio, she became interested in writing, and produced her first story, "The Sprigged Muslin." From time, she moved toward a liter-career. She published her work first in Sunday school papers, and later was received into the group of contributors to the Century Magazine.

What the World Reads

THERE can be little doubt that the ton & Co. $1. book of the coming season in Sweden will be Fru Karin Smirnow's biography of her mother, Siri von Essen, who was the first wife of Strindberg. According to Iluna, which is the Swedish Ladies Home Journal, with modifications, the book will be entitled "Strindberg's First Wite." Strindberg treated his first wife with great injustice when he wrote "The Confessions of a Fool," Fru Strindberg was advised by her friends to come to her own defence. She scorned berg was advised by her friends to come to her own defence. She scorned the idea. NO TIME FOR YALE TOOK COLLEGE HOME SAYS H. C. WITWER

LOS ANGELES, CAL., April 10-Interviewed here today, the popular short story writer, H. C. Witwer, confessed that he has acquired a college education without going to any college. In response to a query concerning the classical literary flavor of the opening paragraphs and titles of his current stories in Collier's and in Cosmopolitan Magazine, Witwer produced a letter he had just written to a friend in New York.

"I most assuredly have a Five-Foot Shelf," he wrote, "and if you don't think I use it constantly for inspiration, reference and mental calisthenics, you should see the well-thumbed pages.

"There is no excuse for anyone missing a college cducation when these books are available."

In response to further inquiries, Witwer said that he has been successively a newsboy, soda clerk, circus publicity writer, sports editor, and short story writer. "I have never had time to be an inmate of dear old Yale," he added. but a constant inmate of my home

Every child who owns My BOOK HOUSE 'knows and loves the story of "The Little Engine That Could." He loves the generosity, courage and perseverance of the Little Engine. He sees the value of these qualities and most important of all he applies them to his problems. Think what it means to the child to meet any obstacle with the confidence and persistence learned from this story. Think what it means for him to be able to say with the Little Engine, "I thought I could?" My BOOK HOUSE is different from other children's books. It presents reading of a high literary standard which children will enjoy and which will strengthen and build character. It gives children the very best stories and poems obtainable, selected from a wide range of sources by one who is "a writer, an educator, and herself a mother." Six volumes, 2560 pages. Its 537 titles represent 197 authors and 36 countries. The illustrations are "unforgetable." Selected, edited, graded and indexed by Olive Beaupré Miller.

RADIO WAVES MEETING ANTENNA GENERATE SENDER'S FREQUENCY

The development of radio telephony to commercial practicability has made it possible for persons not familiar with telegraph codes to send and re-ceive radio signals without any study or practice. Furthermore, the possior practice. Furthermore, the possibility of sending out telephone concerts, news items, etc., from central radio stations has interested a very large number of persons who do not care to experiment with radio apparatus, and this forms a third class of the requirements, that is radio communication.

High Frequency Currents

Alternating currents of ordinary commercial frequencies such as 60 cycles might be used, but would not work well. The disturbance in the ether will be greater the higher the frequency, and very high frequencies are used to get practical results. Radio transmitting stations use alternating currents of frequencies from 15,000 cycles to about 1,000,000 and 3,000,000 cycles per second.

Of course, special means are necessary to generate these very high frequency currents. We do not need to study just how these currents are generated in order to understand radio reception. It need be understood only turbances, or waves, which constitute radio transmission.

If telegraph is desired, the alternating current in the elevated wire or antenna is started and stopped by means of a key, according to certain the control of the contr on. If telephony is desired, the alternating current is arranged to flow in the antenna wires continuously, and the amplitude or strength of this current is varied in accordance with the variations of the voice by the use of a microphone just like the month. of a microphone just like the mouthpiece of the ordinary wire telephone desk set. That is, in radio telephony, the continuously flowing current in the transmitting antenna is rapidly varying in strength in accordance with the variations of the speaker's voice.

Until the advent of popular radio- that of the alternating currents in the casting, communication by radio was confined chiefly to two classes: First, the waves. The second requirement in reception, which comes into the problem after the current is as large as possible, is to convert this current, which that alternating currents of very high frequency when flowing in an elevated system of wires send out ether disarbances, or waves, which constitute rent, into direct current or low frequency alternating current. CURTAILMENT IS GENERAL AMONG COPPER COMPANIES

Price Is Expected

NEW YORK, May 7—North and South American mines are producing copper at the rate of about 185,000,000 pounds a month. Copper coming here from other continents for refining, together with scrap return to smelters, approximates 10,000,000 pounds a month compared with the recent maximum of 211,000,000 pounds in December, a reduction of about 16,000,000 pounds a month. Of this copper, 165,000,000 to 170,000,000 pounds a month. Of this copper, 165,000,000 to 170,000,000 pounds are by producers that sell their output to custom smelters or refiners either as ore or in unrefined form.

It is this 25,000,000 to 30,000,000 pounds of copper a month sold by the custom smelters and refiners approximately as fast as received, no matter what the demand, that causes prices to sag when demand decreases. However, it is not until the major producers meet the price of custom smelters and second-hands, that prices really break, for custom smelters cannot satisfy demand when real buying begins.

Curtailment Helps

The curtailment of 15,000,000 to 16.

000,000 pounds a month now in effect is entirely by companies selling their own copper. The so-called custom output remains at about the same rate.

A reduction of 16,000,000 pounds a month in output is sufficient to put the price to 15 cent unless another period of price fear develops. Consequently, unless something unfavorable happens in Europe, or a short-crop scare develops in this country, the price of 15 cents seems probable by the last of Jurie despite the present general pessimistic frame of mind that is holding back buying orders throughout indus-Curtailment Helps

The issuance of this stock has been authorized by the Railroad Commission of the State of California

The following information is taken from official sources:

Business Field: The Southern California Edison Company, one of the most comprehensive light and power systems in the world, generates, transmits and distributes electricity in a territory which includes Los Angeles and ten large counties in southern and central California with a population of over 2,000,000 and an area of 55,000 square miles. This territory includes 360 cities and towns, and is equal to the combined area of New York and Connecticut. In this territory 263,000 consumers are supplied directly, and 175,000 indirectly, with electric light and power service.

Property: The physical property includes 503,100 horsepower in 24 plants, of which 376,000 horsepower is in hydroelectric and 127,100 horsepower is in steam capacity. In addition, 55,000 hydro-electric horsepower and 120,000 steam horsepower will be added during the years 1924 and 1925, bringing the total generating capacity of the Company to 678,100 horsepower. The transmission and distributing systems include 1,500 miles of high tension transmission line, 185 substations, and 6,500 miles of distribution lines. The connected load aggregates about 950,000 horsepower.

Capitalization: After giving effect to present financing: Total Funded Debt Original Preferred Stock (paying 8%, closed issue) Preferred Stock 6% and 7% (including this issue) -4,000,000 Common Stock (paying 8%) -

There is included $1,382,100 Preferred and $6,870,600 Common Stock sold on partial payments.

Earnings: For the :welve months ended December 31, Gross Earnings -Operating Expenses and Taxes -6,663,369 8,886,471 $10,318,857 $11,324,689 Net Earnings Interest Charged to Operation, and Amortization -$7,969,274 Annual Dividends on Preferred Stocks (including this issue) 1,785,361 Balance for Depreciation and Common Dividends -

> In the above earnings statement the interest, amounting to $2,359,314 on funds invested in construction work in progress is deducted from interest actually paid in accordance with rulings of the Railroad Commission of the Sate of California.

The balance available for Preferred dividends is about 4½ times the requirement on all Preferred stocks now outstanding, including this issue. Net earnings are over 2.20 times the aggregate of interest charged to operation, amortization and the Preferred Stock dividend requirement.

Equity: The equity after the preferred stocks is represented by $47,858,072 of common stock, which is currently selling in the market at a premium. Commencing May 1910, the company has paid cash dividends on its common stock without interruption. The initial rate of 5% was increased to 6% in 1914, to 7% in 1916, and to the present rate of 8% in 1921. Over 90% of the stockholders are consumers of the company, and over 90% of the permanent employees are stockholders. The public relations enjoyed by the Company are a matter of national repute.

The Charles A. Coffin Foundation Medal: The initial award of this medal, was made to the Southern California Edison Company at a public meeting of the National Electric Light Association in New York, June 7, 1923, for "the greatest contribution to the development of electric light and power for the convenience of the public and the benefit of the industry for the year 1922,"

Decline in Both Net and Gross in March and the Quarter—

May Show $12 on Common

Southern Railway's gross earnings in March, like those of many another road, reflected the slackening in general industry.

OLD COLONY TRUST COMPANY

WILL AND GOODWILL

In carrying out the provisions of a will or in administering a trust, the business transactions among relatives are sometimes a source of disagreement between members of families who, previously, lived on the best of terms.

When you appoint a professional Executor or Trustee, impartiality of treatment is assured, which avoids family friction and conserves good feeling.

PHILIPPINE FOREIGN TRADE IS LARGEST SINCE FEBRUARY, 1921

Philippine foreign trade in March clearly reflected the improved conditions which have prevailed in the islands in recent months, says John A. Fowler, Trade Commissioner, in a cable to the United States Department of Commerce. Total trade of 45,532,000 pesos exceeded that of each month since February, 1921, when the islands foreign commerce amounted to 49,743,000 pesos. The reason for this satisfactory position was the value of March exports, 31,744,000 pesos, the largest of any month since June, 1920, when exports totaled 40,257,000 pesos. Imports of toreign merchandise into the Philippines in March were valued at 13,788,000 pesos, leaving an excess of exports amounting to 17,956,000 pesos, the largest favorable trade balance of the Islands since the boom period of 1920, when June exports exceeded imports by 32,184,000 pesos.

HARDWARE SALES INCREASE SLOWLY

The Hardware Age, in its weekly market summary says: The continued caution on the part of buyers, particularly when making commitments for future orders, seems to have strengthened the belief of market authorities that no aggressive buying movement is likely until midyear. Favorable weather conditions, however, have materially increased the demand for spring and summer merchandise.

Price concessions are reported from various market centers, but in the majority of cases it is said these are being made by individual holders who desire to dispose of stocks they are unable to carry. As far as the regular market is concerned, the tendency is to hold prices at the present level.

The increased demand for seasonal goods is expected to carry the general hardware business well into the summer on a good volume of sales, and from July on it is expected that business conditions will be more active.

WOOL AUCTIONS IN LONDON INDICATE FIRM PRICE TREND

Crossbreds on Par With Last Week's Sales Level-France a Keen Buyer

The third series of colonial wool auctions opened in London yesterday, with prices generally well maintained on the basis of prices at the closing of the previous sales. Only greasy crossbreds grading 48s to 44s, inclusive, showed a slightly casier tendency, these being par to 5 per cent lower, while merinos, which were in poor supply, and the best slipes, were tending against the buyer somewhat. Everything else, including Cape wools, was firm. Generally crossbreds were on a par with the last "Bawra" sale in Liverpool, last week. The third series of colonial wool auc-

As was to be expected, Bradford was As was to be expected, Bradford was the big buyer of crossbred wools. The combers, who are well supplied with crossbred wools in anticipation of the prospective wool pinch expected in the latter part of the year, bought evidently to protect their present holdings chiefly. The demand for merinos was sufficient to strengthen prices over the closing gates at the previous London series, with France an especially keen buyer of these wools.

Bids were opened for the Jericho (Utah) wools, which pool comprises some $00,000 pounds or thereglouts, Monday afternoon. Three Boston houses made offers for the wool, the bids being, respectively, 40% cents, 38% cents and 38 cents, all of which bids were rejected. The owners' committee fixed the price on the wool at 43 cents, which was figured to mean about $1.45, clean hasis, landed Boston. Assuring the same shrinkage for the wool this year, the clean landed cost then would be in the vicinity of $1.20. For a series of four years, the Jericho wools, which constitute, the largest single block of wool in the west, have been sold at an average price of about 46-cents. The high price was 71 cents in 1920, just before the crash came.

The price paid for this pool has come to be regarded as more or less barometric of the Western market. It is understood that the high bidder this year has taken an option on the wool at the price fixed by the growers, namely, 43 cents.

Elsewhere through the West, buying has been scattered, but probably close 0 pounds of wool has been contracted to date in the territory sec-tions. Three manufacturers, including the American Woolen Company, have bought in the neighborhood of 125,000

Goods Market Unsatisfactory

Goods Market Unsatisfactory
Interest in the goods market is said to be of minor proportions and intermittent. The position of the manufacturer is far from desirable, but it is hoped that the coming lightweight season may bring a much better business. There has been some movement recently in yarns and tops of the finerqualities, and by degrees the market is being made, more liquid, although prices are far from satisfactory.
Choice fine tops bring $1.70 with difficulty, and choice sixtles fetch not more than $1.60.

The export movement continues de-

The export movement continues desultory. It is reported that a fairly substantial line of Australian fine wools has been sold for export, although such a sale would seem less likely than the recent-movement of Capes abroad.

There have been some sales of medium to low crossbreds, Australian bulk 44s, with some 46s, having been sold at 19d, delivered, Bradford or Liverpool, which is figured to be equivalent to 23 cents

RADIO CORPORATION

Stockholders of the Radio Corporation of America have authorized reductions in preferred shares from 5,000,000 to 500,000 and an increase in par value from $5 to $50, also in common shares of no par value from 7,500,000 to 1,500,000. Company 6 per cent preferred stock, which was recently authorized by the Railroad Commission of California.

The proceeds from this issue of stock will provide the company with funds for the development of additional hydroelectric power to take care of the extraordinary demand in southern California, especially in the territory surrounding Los Angeles.

The result has been that the company added during the last six months of 1923 some 130,000 water horsepower, which was immediately sold, and plans are now being developed to increase this supply materially during 1924 to take care of the excessive demand.

UNSECURED DEBTS OF CHINA EXCEED FORMER ESTIMATE

The total unsecured and inadequately secured debts of the Chinese Government now aggregate silver $723,000,000 (or silver $223,000,000 more than the latest previous estimate) according to the preliminary report of the Commis-sion for the Readjustment of Chinese Government Finances.

American Buying Small

There are some orders for American account in-buying brokers' hands in London, although it seems unlikely that any considerable weight of wool will be imported from London during the current year. The supply of Australian interious in dealers' hands here is understood to be limited. Supply purchases for this market in Australia are estimated at from 80,000 to 90,000 bales.

The scarcity of fine wools was shown in this market also by the fact that orders were placed in the Melbourne clean-up sale last week, when only some 10,000 bales were offered. America bought a few hundred bales of the best wools, evidently, at prices, in excess of the current market here.

Thus, good 64-70s combing merinos were costing about $1.30, compared with recent sales here of $1.25@1.28. Average wools were $1.27@1.28, clean basis, in bond, while similar wools were being sold in this market for about $1.23@
1.25; in other words, the market here for the best merinos was 3 to 5 cents a pound, clean basis, below that of the primary markets.

Finer Qualities Preferred

The report of the commission, according to a cable to the United States Department of Commerce from American Internations in that the Central Government, requiring silver $128,000,000 annually for administrative expenses, actually receives for this purpose a net amount of only silver $7,000,000.

FLEISCHMANN CO. EARNINGS IN 1924 MAY SET RECORD

Indicated Profits of $6 a Share on Common-Gross Sales Now at $40,000,000 Annual Rate on the basis of the quarterly report for the first three months of this year. Fleischmann Company earnings, if they can be continued, bid fair to set a new high record for the company. Net profits for the first quarter of 1924 after taxes and other charges amounted to $2.091,209, equal to $1.39 a share on the 1.500,000 shares of common, compared with $1,874,803 for the corresponding quarter a year ago, or $1.25 a share on the stock.

With the background of the increased carnings, there is reason for believing that favorable developments relative to dividends are in store for relative to dividends are in store for common holders. Beyond the fact that he common stock was announced last November to be on a $3 regular divi-dend basis, the company has given no intimation of dividend policy.

84 Dividend Rate Intimated

Four quarterly payments of 75c each ere declared in advance for 1924, How-yer, an extra payment of 25c a share

Four quartery payments of voc each were declared in advance for 1924. However, an extra payment of 25c a share was declared on the common stock last December and paid in January, 1924. It is possible either through the medium of further extra payments or an increased rate, the Fleischmann common shareholders may receive $4 in the way of dividends this year.

Both gross sales and net earnings available for dividends continue to expand. Last year the company declared (including extra dividends), $8,25 a share on the common stock and earned $4.70 a share. Of the $8,630,000 net earnings, $4,875,000 was paid out in common dividends, while $3,637,000 was returned to surplus. The company's sales unit per custemer is probably as small as any organization in the country, making for stability of sales over sales unit per custemer is probably as small as any organization in the coun-try, making for stability of sales over a period of years.

Strong Financial Position Strong Financial Position On the basis of indicated sarning power this year estimated at about $6 a share for the common stock, a $4 dividend payment on the shares does not seem to be excessive. In the three years, 1921-23 inclusive, the company turned back into the property after all dividends upwards of $12,500,000, so that its balance sheet makes an enviable showing.

The present rate of gross sales is slightly in excess of $40,000,000 annually, while the balance sheet at the close of 1923 showed that the company bad working capital of $12,739,000, more than ample for its needs. Preferred, stock outstanding ahead of the common is gradually being retired and when eliminated will leave the common stock as the sole capital obligation. At the close of 1923 preferred outstanding had been reduced to $1,309,000, compared been reduced to $1,309,000, compared with $2,064,000 the previous year.

CHICAGO STEEL TRADE VERY DULL

New Business at Low Ebb-Change for Better Imminent -Supplies Are Low

CHICAGO, May 7 (Special)—New business in iron and steel the last few days has been at the lowest ebb of the year, but sentiment is turning the cor-ner and order books should reflect this improvement shortly. Seasonable weather is dissipating the gloom that has enshrouded the local market; it should stimulate automobile and country has enshrouded the local market; it should stimulate automobile and country buying.

In some cases iron and steel stocks are at the danger low point. Threat of a strike at sheet and tin plate mills July 1 is prompting greater buying of sheets. Consumers have no monopoly on the game of keeping in mentories down. Iron and steel production has closely followed consumption on the way down. Practically no stocks of steel and comparatively light stocks of pig iron are in producers' yards. Wheri consumers do return to the market they will probably come all at once. They will not find, producers with heavy stocks to unload: In the last few days finished steel' production has dropped 5 per cent to between 75 and 80, while two more blast furnace stacks have been blown out.

cent to between 75 and 80, while two more blast furnace stacks have been blown out.

Northern malleable and foundry iron is down to $23, furnace, and less could be done on attractive business. Birmingham iron is held at $22 to $23, furnace. The larger sizes of cast from pipe are weak and as low as $55.20, Chicago, can be done. The reduction in bar iron to 2.30 cents, Chicago, has not stimulated business.

Producers are attempting to stabilize soft steel bars at 2.35 cents, Chicago, and structural shapes and steel plates at 2.45 cents, Chicago. The contest for the 80,000 to 100,000 tons of finished steel required for the 815 Chesapeake & Ohio cars placed recently is said to have developed a still lower price.

Large rivets have dropped to $2.90@ 3.10 per 100 pounds. Large offerings of scrap by railroads recently brought strong bids, considering the recent decline and scrap may be plumbing bottom. The way the railroads are pressing for deliveries on their rail and track fastening contracts indicates decided maintenance of activity this spring.

IN STEEL MAKING
The Iron Age says: The week has brought a more marked reduction in the world, and enough return traffic to keep his system hauling at capacity both directions.

Rumors that Ford will buy Pere Marquette also include Green Bay & West-quette Green B the final week of April. The estimated steel ingot output being now at the rate of about 36,000,000 tons a year, as com-pared with 40,000,000 tons a year as May opened.

Our pig iron statistics also indicate a pronounced curtailment, with a net loss of 40 in active blast furnaces in April. This figure compares with a loss of 28 in August, 1922, under the com-bined influence of the coal and rail-road strikes. road strikes.

LINK FORD WITH PERE MARQUETTE

Fact That Road Would Be Big Asset to Manufacturer Quickens Rumor

NEW YORK, May 7-Seeking an ex-NEW YORK, May 1—Seeking an explanation for the recent strength of St.

Paul and Pere Marquette railroad securities. Wall Street has produced reports that Henry Ford is negotiating for the purchase of one or both of the roads. Despite the automobile manufacturer's desertion that he was through buying railroads, the fact that he could use them to advantage has lent color to the rumor.

DETROIT. May 7 — Many investors are reported to be purchasing Pere Marquette common and preferred stocks in the blind belief that the motor magnate will eventually buy that road. It may be interesting, therefore, to point out the possible usefulness of this system as a factory adjunct to the Ford Motor Company, although it must be borne in mind that, should Mr. Ford purchase this road, minority stockholders might not fare very well. In the case of Detroit, Toledo & Ironfon, which Mr. Ford now owns, minority stockholders have been litigating for dividends for two years, without much success.

From the standpoint of controlling joint rates and return traffic, Perc Marquette in Ford's hands would be so Marquette in Ford's hands would be so powerful as to make present rate advantages of Detroit, Toledo & Ironton small by comparison.

Pere Marquette stretches over Michigan like a spider, and its tentacles connect up the big Ford plants at Detroit with its important Chicago anod Butfalo assembly plants. This road's car ferries from Ludington bridge almost half the distance from Detroit to the growing Ford assembly plant at St. Paul-Minneapolis.

With Pere Marquette as a Ford road, the Ford Motor Company would have nearly 100 per cent control of routing the Ford Motor Company would have nearly 100 per cent control of routing its outbound traffic. California, on the other hand, has another strong entry, headed by Capt. The squad of 10 men upon which the champions will depend includes only four point scorers of last year who accounted for 21 of the Californians' 39½ points. Besides Neufeldt, they include J. T. NEW YORK, May 7 (P)—Intercollegiate track and field laurels, which have been carried back to the Pacific chast by University of California for the past three seasons, probably again will go to the far west, in the opinion of well-informed observers here, but not in the possession of the champien Golden Bears.

Experts who base their calculations on spring showings so far favor Stanford University to carry off the east's major college track and field prize in the meet to be held at Harvard Stadium May 30 and 21. This is based not only on Stanford's recent decisive defeat of California in their dual contest, but on the particularly well-balanced squad of the Palo Alto collegians.

Four Leaders Left in Championship

Will Play for U. S. Checker Title and Major Rewards

NEW YORK, May 7—The result of yesterday's play in the national checker championship at the Hotel Alamac was the elimination of many of the lesser prices from the field of competition, with four of the leaders remaining to play for the championship and the major rewards.

The two Brooklyn stars, L. G. Ginsberg and Samuel Gonotsky, who have not lost a single match, will compete with J. F. Horr of Buffalo, and Alfred Jordan, the former British champion, for the first four prizes. S. S. Bell, who lost to Horr in the sixth round, with G. M. Tanner, the Illinois champion, for the first four prizes. S. S. Bell, who lost to Horr in the sixth round, with G. M. Tanner, the Illinois champion, and L. M. Lewis, will contest for the eighth and ninth. The other Boston entrant. E. C. Waterhouse, was defeated by Lewis in the continuation of his fifth-round match, when Lewis won the fourteenth game by scoring a victory with the black pieces on a barred opening, after 13 draws had been redopening, after 13 draws had been redopening after 13 draws had been redo

OHIO STATE SCORES

WIN OVER PURDUE, 8-4

LAFAYETTE, Ind. May 7 (Special)
Ohio State University scored an 3-to-4 victory over Purdue University in baseball here yesterday on the Stuart Field diamond. The winhers trailed at the start of the fourth inning, 4 to 1, Purdue the delivery of J. W. Campbell 24, the cold Gold and Black pitcher, and by hunching hits soon ran up their score, Five misplays by Coach W. L. Eambert's men also aided the Ohio State scoring, M. H. Taube 26 and T. N.
DeArmand 26 of Purdue, both connected for home runs in their turn at the third inning.

WAY TO A 4-TO-2 WIN

ST. LOUIS. Mo.. May 7 (Special)— Washington University's baseball team batted its way to a Conference victory over University of Kansas' team here yesterday afternoon, winning by a 4 to 2 score. The game, which had been delayed for 20 minutes at the close of the fifth inning, was ended after the Kansas half of the seventh by rain.

T. H. Davis '27, who was hit hard by Washington during the two innings
he worked Monday, tried a comeback, but yielded 10 hits, including a home run by J. E. Gragg '25 and a triple by Adolph Thym '26. Thym pitched a great game for Washington, and held the opposition to six singles. Trailing at 3 to 2 in the sixth, Kansas filled the bases, but Thym retired the next three hatters without permitting a run. He was also the batting hero of the day, getting three hits in three trips to the plate, and scoring two runs. J. C. Lonborg '24 with two safeties in four efforts, contined his hitting streak for Kansas. The score by innings:

LAWRENCE, Kan., May 7 (Special)

Three singles and one doubles tennis LAWRENCE, Kan., May 7 (Special) —Three singles and one doubles tennis matches are scheduled for today between University of Kansas and University of Oklahoma Kansas triumphed over Oklahoma yesterday for the accord time in two weeks, when the southern visitors went down to defeat in three singles matches.
The outstanding star of the encounters was V. M. Rogers '26 of the Kansas team, who easily vanquished his opponent, J. C. Harrington '24 of the visitors, in straight sets. Rogers was never in danger. This is his first year of varsity tennis, and he has not logt a match since the beginning of the season.

set with apparent ease from his Oklahoma opponent, Robert Brandenburg '26, lost the second, 2—6, but came back stronger than ever in the third. Capt. G. V. Glaskin '24 of Kansas, had difficulty in defeating Glenn Mead '26, in the second set, after dropping the first, but in the third, the younger man tired and was an easy victim of Glaskin's cool, steady game. The summary:

V. M. Rosen. The summary:

V. M. Rogers, Kansas, defeated J. C. Harrington, Oklahoma, 6—4, 6—2.
G. W. Smith, Kansas, defeated Robert Brandenburg, Oklahoma, 6—2, 2—6, 6—0.
G. V. Głaskin, Kansas, defeated Glenn Mead, Oklahoma, 3—6, 8—6, 6—1.

ITALIAN PLAYERS DIVIDE

ROME. May 7—The Italian Olympic tennis team won and lost matches in the final day's play of the international tournament with Germany yesterday. Clemente Serventi of Rome won a closely contested match from Huhl of the German team, while the Countess Giannuzzi was outplayed by Frau Nepach, and lost three straight sets. In the four days of play 14 matches have been contested, the Italians winning four of them.

Tennis Officials Hold Conference on Player-Writer Ruling

THE early victories of the New York Glants which enabled the club to secure a firm hold on first place were made largely against the Phillies, and now that team is the one that is cutting down the Glants' lead, which has dwindled to half a game. Fred Williams of the Phillies, who has just recently returned to the lineup, is proving the Glants' stumbling-block, as, his home runs were responsible for the two successive victories for his team.

williams was a little late in getting into the game; but he is wasning no time in catching up to the leaders in the homerun class. Three in the last two days have given him a total of, five and place him in a tie with three others for second place. At the rate he is going, G. H. Ruth will have to look to his laurels.

Z. A. Wheat, who heads the National League batting averages, and Heilmann, who heads the American League, are not only consistent hitters, but are up among the first three home run hitters. This is an unusual record.

Leigh Hunt in His Own Period

Hazilit as a man of cavalier grace and refinement; and the "autobiography" leaves one with an impression of some such combination of traits; and this in spite of the fact that he was reputed to be timid, improvident in money matters, and self-indulgent. The com plete answer to such charges is the beautiful eulogy of him written by his son, Thornton, and prefixed to the edition of 1859.

man of unconscionable selfishness and

THE recent publication in England of an edition of Leigh Hunt's poetical works may serve to remind us that Hunt deserves to be remembered, not only as poet, essayist, and in the seen, as a man of Puritan firmness and solidity of character, and ered, not only as poet, essayist, and citic, but as the author of perhaps the finest autobiography in English. "The Autobiography of Leigh Hunt, with Reminiscences of Friends and Contemporaries," written in 1849 and published in 1850 aroused even the enlished in 1850, aroused even the enthusiasm of Carlyle,—a man not easily pleased. "Well, I call this an excellent good book," he said, "by far the best of the autobiographic kind I remember to have read. . . A plous, ingenious, altogether human and worthy edition of 1859.

He certainly had faults of manner which suggested to Dickens an odious character in "Bleak House," but since he and Dickens had been intimate friends for years (he always speaks of Dickens as "my dear friend," in the "Autobiography"), it would be foolish to suppose that the novelist had any intention of giving a portrait of Hunt. And yet the tradition has persisted that Hunt was a man of unconscionable selfishness and book, imagining throughout a gifted book, imagining throughout a gitten, gentle, patient, and valiant human soul." Most readers will echo this praise, and with many the "Autobiography" is a favorite book.

Hunt's early life was so involved in controversy on political affairs and he was so hotly attacked by his journalistic opponents that those who know him only as the man who was imprisoned for plain-speaking about the Prince Regent and as the founder of the so-called Cockney School of poets, may easily have a very false notion of his true personality. And on the other hand, those who know him only through his essays and poems may have an equally false notion. For his reputation as painted by his enemies suggests a dangerous radical and trou-ble-maker, and his temperament as reflected in his essays and poems suggests a dilettante and asthete. To know him truly, one must read further and in such reading the "Autobiog-raphy" is indispensable. Keats and Lamb each addressed a loving sonnet to him, and Shelley dedicated to him his drama, "The Cenci."

This interesting to remember, too, that Byron and Hazlitt—different as two men could be—recorded the same impression of Hunt, as of a man who seemed to belong to an older and nobler day. Byron, writing in 1813, said: "Hunt is an extraordinary character, and not exactly of the present He reminds me more of the Pym Hampden times—much talent, grest independence of spirit, and an austere, yet not repulsive, aspect. If he goes on, I know few men who will deserve more praise, or obtain it." And Hazlitt, in 1825, said: "He is the only poet or literary man I have ever known who puts me in mind of Sir John Suckling, or Killigrew, or Carew; or who unites rare intellectual acquirements with outward grace and natural gentility," Finally, Hawthorne, who met Hunt years afterward, records, in "Our Old Home," his impressions: "I have said that he was a benatiful old man. In truth, I never saw a finer countenance. A beautiful and venerable old man, buttoned to the chim in a black dress-coat, tall and slender, with a counte-may study philosophy, however far he may pursue the various schools that have held different theories relative to the universe and existence, it nevertheless follows that nothing more than speculative theories have been evolved from this stupendous labor,-theories which have added little to demonstrated knowledge, nor shown mankind the way out of its troubles and fears.

It remained for a present-day revelation to solve the problem of ultimate reality, a revelation which sets humanity in the way of gaining freedom from all that would constrict and enslave. In Christian Science, Mary Baker Eddy not only reveals the facts of existence, the ultimate of reality, but has established the method and rule whereby all who will may work uncertainty which characterize human learn to put off the beliefs of the flesh with their limitation, gaining in their place the true understanding of man's to the Scriptures" Mrs. Eddy with fine concision says: "All reality is in God and His creation, harmonious and eterand He makes all that is made." statement explain man's existence and Science answers the question with equal precision. Man, Christian Science asserts, being in the image and likeness of God, expresses and reflects all the qualities of God, the divine perfection, of which the so-called physical feit. AN ENGLISH prelate, writing in a know this? Has proof established it? know this? Has proof established it? And Christian Science positively answers that proof has been established through the demonstrations of Christ Jesus and his disciples and followers, and again through the restoration of primitive Christianity in modern times. Through his perfect spiritual under-standing, Christ Jesus disproved the claims of matter and the seeming reality of the so-called material world, annulling certain of the most cherished of human beliefs. Likewise, Mrs. Eddy and the students of her teachings are demonstrating the omnipotence and omnipresence of God, thereby disproving the claims to reality of material phenomena.

On pages 9 and 10 of "Unity of Good" Mrs. Eddy states the case clearly. In answer to the query, "What is the cardinal point of the difference in my metaphysical system?" she answers thus: "That by knowing the unreality of disease, sin, and death, you demonstrate the allness of God. This difference wholly separates my system from all others. The reality of these socalled existences I deny, because they are not to be found in God, and this system is built on Him as the sole cause." In proof of this assertion, the students of Christian Science are destroying the claims of disease, of sin, of lack, in fact, of whatever assumes to limit and destroy man's right activity, harmony, and existence. In demonstration of the power of the Christ to destroy sin. Christian Science is regenerating the sinner through proving the falsity of sin's claims to reality. While Christian Scientists do not demtheir way out of the limitations and onstrate spiritual truth beyond their understanding, it follows that with the existence into the realm of reality and persistent destruction of error, more certainty, where is found God and His and more of spiritual reality is being perfect universe, including spiritual revealed, so that ultimate spirituality man. Moreover, in the process mortals in multitudinous ways is becoming correspondingly more apparent.

In speaking of scientific translation on page 485 of Science and Health, Mrs. Eddy says. "Think not to thwart come naturally into Spirit through better health and morals and as the result of spiritual growth;" and she "Not death, but the understanding of the universe, progress is made until the ultimate be manifest in all its elfhood as the child of God. On page 472 of "Science and Health with Key the spiritual ultimate of all things, but nal. That which He creates is good, adds this sentence of great import: in simplest language is set forth the Life, makes man immortal." EDITORIALS

THERE remains not the least doubt that Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler has assumed the position of leadership of

Is Enforcement a Political Issue? the nullificationists who are opposing every effort to enforce the prohibition law in the United States, generously tendered him, following his recent address before the Missouri Society in New York. He proposes, according to the announcement of one apparently authorized to speak in his behalf, to convince the delegates to the Republican national convention which meets in Cleveland next month that the enforcement, or more properly the non-enforcement, of the law, has assumed, all at once, the dignity and proportions of a political issue, and that upon that issue the convention should declare its stand. He apparently has lost sight of the fact that the President of the United States, who perhaps will have the deciding voice in formulating the party's platform, has already defined his and his party's-position as one of absolute adherence to the constitutional amendment and to the enforcement code.

Dr. Butler is quoted as saying that because the law is not being enforced the amendment should be repealed. It is hardly to be expected that a political party invested with the power and authority to enforce the provisions of a constitutional amendment will willingly admit its own impotency to execute the mandate of the people. The issue, if there be one, is not as Dr. Butler and his friends and sympathizers pretend to define it. No one imagines for a moment that they seriously propose the repeal of the amendment. What they are seeking is modification. No political party will have the temerity to propose a repeal by a process which would involve the ratification of a repealing clause by the legislatures of three-fourths of the states. Congress would not, as at present constituted, initiate such a proposal. Probably not a single state in the Union, if the actual test were made, would sanction the repealing clause. And this in face of the statement of Dr. Butler that the law cannot

The ingenuity and craftiness of the nullificationists and modificationists have taken them far beyond such a futile endeavor. All their plans and schemes are designed to compel submission to their demand that the rigors of the law be relaxed. The subtle threat is made that unless the Republican Party leaders agree to this demand the states along the Atlantic seaboard will "revolt" and thus insure the election of a Democratic President. The discarded slogan, "No beer, no work," apparently is to be superseded by a newer one, "No beer, no votes"! That is the issue which Dr. Butler and his friends actually present, despite the more dignified threat that they will work for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

It is a thinly disguised subterfuge, at that. As a matter of fact, the nullificationists and modificationists care little for the fundamental law as it is written if, by procuring the enactment of a statute permitting the sale of alcoholic beverages such as beer and wine, they can restore the unopposed traffic in, and use of, such drinks. Those who make no pretense of concealing their ulterior motives realize that, with the saloon once restored, a ready market will be found for the products, not only of the breweries and wineries, but the distilleries as well.

The saloon remains the issue, if indeed the issue has not been settled. No possibility of the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment exists. Even the proposed modification of the law is something for which no political party, much less the administrative party, will care to stand.

THERE is a fundamental rightness in the proposition which The Christian Science Monitor has been support-

Public Opinion and Universal Conscription ing to take the profit—all of the profit—out of war. If other proofs were lacking, the truth of that assertion is attested by the spontaneous response which the plan has called forth from every section of the United States. Men and women and organizations representing every class of American citizenship have declared, without liesitation, that justice demands the success of the proposal and that permanent world peace will be difficult without it. It is not likely that this wave of popular approval will subside until universal conscription, in time of war, has been provided for by legislative action of the Congress of the United States.

The Christian Science Monitor, in advocating this proposal before the country, has not attempted to declare, in detail, the means by which such a measure shall be made effective or the manner in which it will work. From the legislative point of view there are certain rather definite arguments in favor of a constitutional amendment. The Constitution is less flexible and provides opportunity for fewer loopholes of escape, perhaps, than an act of Congress. A constitutional amendment serves notice to the country, and the world, that the United States means business; and that it is too intent in purpose to subject this plan to the whims of any particular Congress.

It has been pointed out by sponsors of this measure in Congress that an amendment at the present time seems unlikely. In order, therefore, to insure that some definite action be taken immediately the Monitor has given its support to the present measures. If these prove to be but half-way measures, the persistent advocacy of the fullest possible legislative guarantee of universal conscription will be continued.

• In the same way, the Monitor has made no attempt to point out, specifically, the way in which universal conscription would work. It is not the obligation of those who advocate universal conscription, as a measure demanded by fundamental justice and the desire for peace, to outline, precisely, the way in which, in any particular factory or business house, this measure would work. The Monitor has received a number of practical suggestions which serve to point out the detailed workings of universal conscription. These suggestions have not been printed, because the Monitor is concerned, primarily, in establishing in the minds of the American public the necessity for the measure, itself. Once that has been accomplished, the detailed application of it will be a comparatively simple matter.

In a government organized as successfully as is the Government of the United States to deal with the myriad details of a vast and complex national administration, the problem of making any measure such as universal conscription effective is less serious than the problem of convincing the public of its necessity. The Monitor, therefore, will continue, in its support of this plan, to provide the channel for the expression of the attitude of the public, rather than to devote itself to the detailed explanations of the workings of the plan which a determined and articulate public opinion may make into law.

DURING the past winter the foundations for a thorough reform of the Polish financial system have been laid

The Polish Capital Levy and among them appears a special tax on capital, known as the capital levy. In western Europe this tax has been looked on as a dire Socialist threat against private property, but in Poland it has already been partly put into effect by a government that is anything but Socialistic. Altogether the Polish property owners will be asked to contribute 1,000,000,000 gold francs, or roughly $200,000,000, toward putting the country's finances in order. Some of this money has already been paid in advance by various industries in order to enable the Government to carryon. The farmers will probably be assessed half the entire sum, industries and commerce 375,000,000 frances and private individuals the rest. Originally the plan was to collect the money within three years, and the present Premier and Minister of Finance, Ladislas Grabski, may demand a third, or perhaps one-half, this year.

Thanks to the inflation of the currency and the resulting depreciation of its value, taxes in Poland have been ridiculously low. The tax on land, which in 1914 was roughly 9 francs per ten hectares, had by Jan. 1, 1924, been reduced to .26 of a franc; a tax on industries, reckoned in gold, had sunk from 13 francs to .19, a duty on alcohol from 3 francs to .52, on beer from 4 francs to .95. No wonder the public treasury had become empty, especially in view of the heavy military expenses.

The value of the old mark became so low that beginning on May 3 last a new currency, based on gold, was put into circulation. For some time values have not been reckoned in paper money, but in the equivalents of the gold franc, or zloty, which is the new monetary unit. A new bank of issue, called the Bank of Poland, began to function on May 3, the anniversary of the Constitution of 1791. Henceforth the old paper currency joined the American Continental and Confederate bills as an object of historical interest and value only.

Economically, Poland is sound. Its crops last year were unusually abundant. Its mines and oil wells are yielding richly and its population is industrious, if in large part poorly educated. In addition to internal tax reform, the Government will resort to special loans. Italian bankers have already advanced 400,000,000 lire. Concessions for the exploitation of forests have been granted to British capitalists. A project to farm out the tobacco monopoly to French interests fell through, because the French demands were judged too exacting. Some French capital is already invested in the mines of Upper Silesia and more may be attracted later.

Before long the Polish Government expects to fund its debt to the United States, amounting to about $150,000,000, hoping to obtain terms similar to those accorded Great Britain. After that an American loan, to be privately subscribed, of $800,000,000 has been projected. Its success depends largely on the prospects of peace in eastern Europe. Militarily the Polish people have shown their patriotism. What will now be demanded of them is the kind of patriotism that makes sacrifices for peace and for the payment of taxes. In Mr. Grabski it has a Premier who is not a military man by profession, but a financier and a tax reformer. He needs strong support.

ON St. George's Day in Montreal, Sir Campbell Stuart, a British newspaper man of Canadian origin, ex-

Canada's Call to Youth pressed the hope that the young men of Canada would rally to the service of their country at the present time as they had done in the dark days of the war. Great problems face Canada today. Men of vision are needed in every department of public service. In Great Britain, Sir Campbell Stuart said, young men are still gravitating into the political arena. Many from the public schools and from the universities are bent upon combating the forces that tend to push the Labor movement into extreme action. But it is not with the intention of meeting force with force, extremes with extremes, that British young men are enlisting in politics. "That is not the British way," Sir Campbell declared. "Secret societies and mysterious oaths were never popular in England, and it is on the platform and in the polling booth that battles are lost and won." He went on to express the hope that a Young Canada movement would rise in the Dominion from shore to shore, "pledged to the service of the land we love so well, fired with the great idea of uniting our mingled elements, of bridging east and west, and, above all, stirred with the fixed resolve to keep Canada Canadian."

One prompt response to Sir Campbell Stuart's patriotic address is expressed in a public speech by C. Grant MacNeil, national secretary of the Great War Veterans' Association of Canada. Mr. MacNeil discussed mainly the southerly migration of Canadian people to the United States. The Dominion census of 1921 disclosed the fact that over 1,000,000 people had moved out of Canada in the single decade from 1911. In the year 1923, alone, 182,369 Canadians were admitted to the United States, which is much in excess of the total immigration into Canada, namely 137,320 people from all countries, during the same year.

This exodus of Canadian citizens has been brought particularly to the attention of the Great War Veterans' Association through the departure of a large number of former Canadian service men to the United States in search of employment. It is estimated that nearly one-third of the demobilized Canadian army has migrated to the United States. But, according to Mr. MacNeil, the young men of Canada are awake to the situation. "They have awaited the outcome of events in patience," said the ex-soldiers' spokesman, "lest the attempt to force revolutionary change should work destruction."

During the years when Canada's youth responded with such fervor to the call of King and country, many young men envisioned a better Canada that would arise out of the travail of the war period. It has been demonstrated in the last five years that the new Canada will not spring up of itself. The call to youth is being sounded. The building process will begin only when men of vision respond to the call.

IN A recent issue of the Schenectady (N. Y.) Gazette an editorial was published under the caption "News and

"News

Crime." The chief significance of this lies, perhaps, in the fact that only about a decade ago such a statement of newspaper views would have been so extraordinary as to be virtually impossible for the ordinary publication. The writer started with the confession of a notorious young female criminal, who, "in an offhand manner," referred "to her initiation" into the habit of taking other people's purses and belongings," and who said, in part, that "she had been reading details of such things in the papers, and while doing so had conceived the notion that it was feasible to get a considerable sum that way quickly for setting up housekeeping." He then reasoned, with perfect justification, that the responsibility which, therefore, the newspapers owe to the public is far greater than is ordinarily

It is not putting it too strongly to state that the stories of crime printed in the newspapers teach no worth-while lessons whatever, but do give instruction, to those wishing to learn them, in countless details of criminal practice. It is to a certain extent true, as may be urged, that some phases of crime need to be "aired" in order that, having been uncovered, they may be corrected. This, however, is far from representing what is the general motive underlying the publication of crime news in the ordinary papers. With the average daily periodical it is virtually nothing more than a willingness to pander to the instinct of morbid curiosity which dictates the policy pursued. Hence one can unqualifiedly agree with the assertion in the Gazette editorial that the publication of the details of "ordinary crimes" has no more place in the news "than the Biblical accounts of the city of Sodom."

When one considers the influence which mental suggestions exercise upon the ordinary, receptive thought of the average individual, the need for making certain that nothing unwholesome is given to him as daily mental pabulum, must be seen as of exceeding importance. Crimes may, to some extent, be considered as news when great issues are involved in their recital, but the common practice of recording, in horrible detail, all the most gruesome and disgusting side issues associated with every instance of moral perversity, the particulars of which can be obtained by an ever-alert news reporter, is conducive to no good for an individual, a community or a nation.

Editorial Notes

WITHOUT imputing any unworthy motives to the authorities of the Pennsylvania Railway in their recent issuance of a notice urging every employee to undergo a complete physical examination at least once a year, it is will justifiable to call attention to the fact that thousands today feel that such a procedure in reality defeats its own ends. The instructions draw the time-worn analogy between the so-called human machine and inanimate mechanisms; which, all agree, need periodical overhauling, and infer therefrom that the former should be similarly overhauled. Convincing as such a plea appears on the surface, its speciousness is seen when the importance of the mental factor, which necessarily operates in connection with this "human machine," is in the least degree appreciated. "Eternal vigilance" may be "the price of safety," as these provisions urge, but constant looking into the body in the expectation of finding evidences that "some stealthy and insidious disease" is "gaining a foothold" is far from constituting "eternal vigilance."

Now that King George has signed the twelve-mile liquor treaty, under which Great Britain tacitly respects the United States' prohibition policy, it should be only a few weeks, at the most, before the provisions of this arrangement will come into force. It is well worth noticing in this connection, especially when the fracas which was raised when the question was first mooted is considered, that this treaty has lain on the table in the House of Commons for several weeks without any member apparently considering it of sufficient importance to bring it up in debate. Thus often, quietly and almost imperceptibly, great steps in progress are taken after the violent opposition aroused when the reform is projected has been given time to die down.

Musical Venturings in the East

Music is an experience to most of us. Perhaps in the usual, conventional haste to consider music a traditional habiliment of civilization, there is tendency to forget the width and profundity of its appeal to personal experience. The common identities of music do not readily call up the tattered food vender, piping hour after hour on his shrill little flute in the byways of China. Or the pathetic cameo of the geisha girl dreaming over her small-stringed instrument, or the folk in tea house and temple on remote hillsides or in sampans on narrow, muddy rivers.

The musical language of the Orient has been long in transportation to the West. Attempts have been made to bring it fragmentarily, but they have largely seemed to miss the real meaning of their origin. The temperament is rare which could sort and absorb the fabric of the Oriental mind, could perceive at once its simplicity and its complexity, its wistfulness and vigor, its bravery and cowardice, its strength and weakness, its loneliness and vagrant insouciance, its removed beauty like "... the noddin' star—atop the windy hill. . . ." The ability of discernment is rare, too, that could set right the misconception that China is a country of size and grandeur even as Japan is of small, more delicate beauty.

A bit more than two years ago a group of studies called "Oriental Impressions" were heard in this country. were written by Henry Eichheim, violinist, a pupil of Lichtenberg, and subsequently a member of the Boston Symphony for a considerable period of years. The theme of the "Impressions" was wholly Oriental in the strictest connotation of the quality. Their treatment, the use of certain instruments hitherto unknown in this country, was more faithful than had been anticipated as possible, a genuine reproduction of the Oriental scene. Since that first group was heard, Mr. Eichheim has returned to the Orient, to hidden corners of Java and Indo-China, to parts of Burmah and again to China and Japan. He has gathered an even surer sense of the Orient, together with fresh impressions soon to take their place in this cumulative department of æsthetic consideration little known to the Western world. The impressions represent a serious, industrious and altogether artistic effort toward the bridging of an artistic chasm, a path cut through the jungle of distance and tradition to a plain, still misted but forever glamorous, of understanding and appreciation.

The composer is no visionary, an individual desiring to attract comment and attention by insecure or extravagant ideas thrust suddenly forward in bizarre form. It was imperative to have had leisure in which to contemplate the task, and restraint sufficient as implement for polishing. For many years he played the violin under the strict and austere guidance of the Theodore Thomas Orchestra in Chicago. He was a composer while he was yet a student busy with the classics, His servitude to conventionality in music was paid in recital, with chamber music, and as both orchestra player and conductor. When the Orient was unknown to him he was engaged in the formal musical study through which every aspirant to particular, choice position must make a way to ultimate freedom of expression.

The desire of composers to write Oriental music is not new. Varied results have been achieved, sometimes weird, fascinating, strangely beautiful, again shocking and distracting to ears trained to the often sugar-coated and peaceful formalities of the age. The cries of "heresy" that attended the advent of "modern music" have simmered, however, to a fragile purr. The profound Debussy, being not estranged from his purpose, compelled acceptance. Others followed after him in composition. The "Oriental Impressions" came forth in a time that was ripe for shrewd scrutiny, came with their attendant qualities indicating a national mood and character, came, to be sure, as emissaries of sound and musical custom, but as emissaries, too, of the ways and thought of a little understood people and milieu.

Thus the 'Impressions' become more than mere unusual music, more than indices to a separate experience, pioneer though their quality is. They are an abiding lesson in the fabric of the Oriental mind. Its play, its work, its poetry and prose, its ache and sob and travail of experience as well as the humor and gayety of its life, are there. The vibrant summons to prayer becomes an intimate, near thing. The rhythmic song of philosophers, too. The quality of interpretation is there which helps us to understand the musical pilgrim of Burmah who declined to sing a little song to a casual inquirer—a little song about a blue flower-because, he said, "this song can only be sung at 2 o'clock on a certain afternoon after the rice The pilgrim was of Persian extraction. from the north in Burmah to teach those of the south his music, and to sing with amazing virtuosity the beautiful songs of the north that would tax the skill of our greatest singers. Yet, being a pilgrim, withal he was an admirable example of Oriental respect for musical suitability. Pilgrim though he was and with time fleeting, yet must he abide by the deterrent demands of suitability for the expression of whatever thought was cloistered in the song about the blue flower.

The music of Java shows itself to be a ribband of lovely sound. In Java all things are done with subtlety and glowing beauty. The Javanese dramatic form—which is called gamelang—is closely related to the Javanese realm of music. The impression on the spectator of music and acting, welded together to such a degree of perfection that it seems almost to be advanced over European civilization, has its only rival in the Noh drama of Japan.

These, then, are the things that a musical explorer in the Orient found. It is as important that the world of music be benefited by the results of exploration as that the spheres of archaeology and geography be enhanced by new contributions concerning ancient properties. If the West and the East can meet at least with understanding and acknowledgment over the rich treasure in the field of music, who shall say, finally, "Never the twain shall meet"?

The Negro Migrant

Negro migration "is not only an economic blow at the South and an economic blessing to the migrant," writes Rollin Lynde Hart in the World's Work, "it is uplifting the migrant, educating him, giving him ambition. The Negro whose acquaintance with mules and cotton was his sole asset has a chance to become a skilled laborer. His children put on shoes. Instead of going to school three months in the year, they go nine months, and to a much better school. Besides, there is 'freedom'—a wretched enough substitute for actual freedom, but nevertheless exhilarating. . . . It is a great thing for the migrant, this migration, and for the northern Negro as well. Until the migration set in, northern Negroes thought principally of themselves. Now they think principally of their less fortunate brethren. To bring them north, to teach them, to civilize and uplift them, is their ambition."
